EXTRA TIME FOR ESTATE FILING

A decedent's estate is essentially a person, as far as tax law is concerned. The estate must file both an estate tax return and an income tax return to cover the period of estate administration. Generally, the tax return is due 3 1/2 months after year-end.

But if the estate needs more time to prepare the returns—or wants more time before paying any tax due—the simplest option is to file using a fiscal year instead of a calendar year. The fiscal year begins in the month of the decedent's death. Say, for instance, that the individual dies in July. Ordinarily, the tax return would be due 3 1/2 months after the end of the year, or by the following April 15. Moving to a fiscal year gains six months: the return is not due until October 15.

If still more time is needed, the IRS has eased extension rules. Estates can use Form 7004 to request six additional months—up from two months—to file.

So much information to gather, so much paperwork to manage—that's why heirs and executors count on our tax know-how at:

Rep. Finegold hosts prescription medication forum for Tewksbury seniors

Representative Barry R. Finegold will host a forum for Tewksbury senior citizens next week that is designed to provide them with advice on their prescription drug medication regimens. An Exploratory Tour of Your Meds is the name of the interactive forum. Rep. Finegold is co-hosting with the Massachusetts Pharmacists Association. The event will take place at the Tewksbury Public Library at 300 Chandler Street on April 19th from 9:30 a.m. - 10:30 a.m.

In a letter inviting Tewksbury seniors to participate in the forum, Representative Finegold stated that the objective of this forum is to guide seniors through the often complicated maze of personal prescriptions. Massachusetts Pharmacists Association representatives will be on hand to provide a better understanding about medications and to answer questions from seniors. To benefit from the program, seniors are invited to collect their medications and bring them to the forum where they will be able to individually review their regimens with pharmacists.

"This is a great opportunity for seniors to come and make sure that the current medications they are taking are compatible with one another," commented Representative Finegold.

Interested participants are encouraged to call and reserve a spot at the forum by calling Rep. Finegold's State House office at 617-722-2676.

Fortnight in Review

by Jayne W. Miller

From: The Editors Desk

by Stephen P. Bjork

'X' marks the spot

Well, now it's turn for Wilmington residents to head out to the polls this Saturday to cast a vote for their candidate of choice.

Unlike Tewksbury's recent election, Wilmington has a slew of candidates to choose from for the lone selectman seat. Incumbent Frank West is hoping to hang onto his seat for another three years from the challenges of Jay Tighe, George Lingenfelter, and Charles Fiore.

Who will win a seat in one of the very few comfortable chairs of Town Hall's Room 9? That is entirely up to you, dear reader.

Are you satisfied with the direction the Board has been following for the past three years?

Would you like to see a shake-up and a thorough housecleaning of Town Hall?

Are you interested in a candidate with a strong background of public service in both appointed and elected positions?

Would you like to bring in a candidate who spends at least 40 hours a week interacting with the people of the community?

Those able to match each of those four questions with a specific candidate are certainly capable of casting an intelligent vote. Certainly each candidate brings far more to the table than any one of those questions may imply, but hopefully you already know that.

Letters to the editor

Collecting Wilmington

Dear Editor,
On Sunday, April 2, 2006, the Wilmington Town Museum at the Col. Joshua Harnden Tavern was proud to host an event entitled "Collecting Wilmington." At this event, local Wilmington residents displayed their collections of Wilmington memorabilia - a variety of personal collections that each illustrated a different aspect of Wilmington's history, as well as the collector's life experience as a Wilmington resident. Throughout the afternoon visitors to the Museum were able to view these collections and speak to the people who brought them. The result was a pleasant and informative event.

This event would not have been possible without the participation of the following generous exhibitors: Gerry O'Reilly, Paul Chalifour, Frank West, the Berghaus family, Jim Durkee, and Harold and Helen Carver. We wish to extend our gratitude to them for sharing their time and collections with the Town Museum - and thus with the citizens of Wilmington. In addition to the display of personal collections which took place on April 2, the Museum also was proud to open on that day a new expanded exhibit entitled "The Brown Family of Harnden Tavern." The Brown family and their descendants lived at the building now known as the Wilmington Town Museum for over one hundred years, and thus played an important role in the history of the building, as well as the history of the town of Wilmington. This new exhibit gives us not only a glimpse of the Brown family as they lived at the Tavern, but a broader picture of nineteenth century life in Wilmington. This exhibit is the creation of Adele Passmore, a member of the Friends of Harnden Tavern, and we are grateful for the outstanding work she has done in assembling it.

The Wilmington Town Museum is open every Tuesday and Thursday from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., the first Sunday of the month from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m., and by appointment. Please feel free to stop by when we are open or to call for an appointment (978-658-5475). You can also call this number to learn more about the Friends of Harnden Tavern, a volunteer organization dedicated to supporting the Wilmington Town Museum at the Col. Joshua Harnden Tavern. And thank you to the citizens of Wilmington for your continued support of the Town Museum.

Terry McDermott
Curator
Wilmington Town Museum

Fiore responds

Dear Editor:
Well, Mrs. Cox and I agree on one thing. It doesn't make sense to rehash the whole story about the Wilmington Housing Authority's complaint to the Ethics Commission, which took place nearly two years ago. Personally, I think it is a shame that the whole thing ever happened, and I look forward to when we can say that this issue is behind us. In the meantime, let's clarify a couple of points for your readers.

First of all, after consulting with counsel, the Housing Authority (not me individually) voted to forward the matter to the Ethics Commission, and since then the Board has followed the advice of its attorney every step of the way. I continue to follow the advice of counsel, and based on that advice I will not be goaded into a public debate about the case. However, I will explain what motivates me to make any decision affecting the town, whether as a member of the Housing Authority, or hopefully, as a member of the Board of Selectmen.

I take time to learn the rules, and I follow them, even when it's inconvenient. I respect people's individual rights, including their rights to privacy. Before taking any action, I weigh the legal consequences to the town against the town's overall objectives. I do what my conscience tells me to do, regardless of whether it is politically correct and regardless of whether it is popular at the time.

I let my actions speak louder than my words. I have based every vote that I have cast as a member of the Housing Authority on these considerations. As a Selectman, I would continue to do so.

Thank you for the opportunity to respond.

Sincerely,
Charles Fiore
Wilmington Resident

I'm amazed at what change two weeks brings. I have buds on my crabapple tree and mud on my porch. Flowers, baseball and budgets; that's spring in New England.

While walking my dog early in the morning I hear my neighborhood come alive. What begins with soft light quickly becomes a cacophony of birdsong, doors slamming, cars starting, and feet running to catch the bus. The same could be said for Tewksbury this spring, particularly in the area of the School Department budget. The town is alive with budget drama, and I'm sure more is on the way.

The U-25 group, by gathering 250 signatures in a mere three hours to put a placeholder article on the warrant, started a movement that over the course of the last two weeks received the support of the School Committee and the Board of Selectmen and culminated in selectmen putting the Proposition 2 override article on a special election ballot slated for June 10.

Selectmen marveled at the initiative shown by U-25 and supporters and noted that its been longer than any of them can remember since an citizen sponsored article made it to the ballot. An organized group coming before the town is powerful, especially one with as much traction as U-25. Traction equals voters.

Also included on that ballot is a debt exemption for $647,000 to buy new furniture and technology for the high school. A debt exemption represents a one time increase rather than a permanent property tax hike, which is why combining the two articles is out of the question. Last year this measure lost by only eight heartbreaking votes.

Students need a place to sit, people! They need a place to eat too. With too few tables and chairs in the cafeteria, a slew of unserviceable desks in classrooms, and outdated, often broken computers we're embarrassing ourselves by what we're providing these kids.

And, speaking of embarrassment, in the April 1 election only 14% of the town's registered voters bothered to show up. Why register if you aren't going to vote? With only 14% of the eligible voters actually voting, that means that for a ballot question like the Community Preservation Act which won with a vote of 1242 to 1118, 6.9% of the town decided that issue. Seven percent! Those of you pleased with the seven percent of us that vote deciding your fate by all means, stay home. But, those residents that want a say in how things are run, please, come and vote.

I take my children to the voting booth with me. I show them how it's done and explain to them that voting is not only a right we have as citizens in a free republic but a responsibility as well. We are responsible to our neighbors, children and parents for the consequences of our votes or lack thereof. Folks discouraged with voting need only remember last year's article that lost by eight votes. Every vote counts, especially at Town Meeting, May 1, where residents pin on a ribbon and stand up to be counted.

U-25 already proved that citizen initiatives can make it to the ballot. The question remains, will citizens follow it up with a vote?

This and That

by Maria Harrison

Like everyone else across America, I was overjoyed at the release of hostage Jill Carroll this past week. That being said, I have to give due pause at the video tape released by the Al Jazeera network quoting Ms. Carroll about the capability of the U.S. soldiers fighting in Iraq and who will ultimately win the war. Everyone has their own opinion about the war and I sincerely don't know what I would do if I were captive in a strange land. And, I'm trying very hard to remember a time in my life when I was filled with idealistic dreams of equality on Earth. Unfortunately, as we age, thoughts of saving the world fade into the harsh realities of life.

However, I do not ever remember a time in my life when I wanted to abandon my American culture to pursue the values and culture of a foreign land. Ms. Carroll didn't do this when the war broke out - she did it in late 2002 six months before the war began. As a journalist and writer, I understand wanting to get a true and unbiased opinion on a story. However, I think that it is impossible to get that fair and unbiased opinion by simply learning a new language and changing the way I dress. We are born American and that freedom ingrained in the fiber of who we are, just as being Italian was ingrained in my grandparents. They were so proud to live in America and my grandfather studied hard to become an American citizen, yet their heritage and their way of life was Italian. It didn't make them less loyal to America - it was simply who they were by definition.

So too, is the heritage and way of life of the Iraqi people that Jill tried so hard to understand. It was a frightening and cruel way to learn that a faction of the very people you are trying to befriend would hate you just because you are an American. Being born an American is something Jill could no more help than the terrorists that captured her could help being born Iraqi. Radicals live folded in all cultures - it's hard enough trying to understand our homegrown skinheads or a Klansman without going half way across the world to understand the mindset of a people who have been at war for the past thousand years. In all honesty, there were as many good Iraqi citizens praying for Jill's release, as there were Americans - including the Suni politician she was on her way to see. Though radicals will always find ways to imbed themselves into society, the good and honest people of any culture will always prevail. Whether she realizes it or not, the fact remains that Jill Carroll was captured to drive a message home to America - Iraq is Iraq and terrorism is a way of life in that land. It was clear in their press release on the day that Jill was released that they considered her captivity a "victory" to their cause and a way to drive home that no American is safe in Iraq. Instead of putting down the troops and our war effort to save the very same people Jill was so bent on knowing, perhaps the press should spend more time telling the public about the incredible progress the troops are making toward the end goal of a free Iraq. Perhaps spend more time interviewing the real Iraqi people - ask them if they would prefer Sadaam.

I will hope for the best for our young American journalist. I hope she puts a higher value on her life and the lives of those who travel with her. No matter how many times she travels to Iraq, she will always be a foreigner in a foreign land.

Letters to the editor

Newhouse responds

Dear Editor:
Last week, Mrs. Lingenfelter mentioned my name in a letter to the editor, wherein she criticized an attorney who works with me. His name is Dan Veerman. I think it's fair to say that the point of her letter was to defend her husband and to criticize Mr. Veerman's point of view. The purpose of this response is twofold.

Most importantly, I want to acknowledge how difficult it must be for Mrs. Lingenfelter to read letters and hear public comments that are critical of her husband. Anyone whose spouse, parent, child, grandparent, grandchild, sibling or even cousin has run for public office knows full well how frustrating it can be to witness a loved one being publicly criticized.

To be fair, though, Mrs. Lingenfelter, your husband has authored letter upon letter to the editor challenging my integrity, questioning my judgment and attacking my political points of view. In the past three years alone, I would estimate that your husband has written about twenty letters to the editor, blaming me for just about everything except for the national debt. Now like your husband, you cannot resist the urge to bring me into a debate that has nothing to do with me. That hardly seems fair to me or my family.

It also leads me to my second point. Just because we work together does not mean that Mr. Veerman and I speak for each other. Frankly, I don't need him, or anyone else for that matter, to speak for me. Likewise, anyone who knows Dan Veerman recognizes that he is an independent, opinionated, and intelligent Wilmington resident. Even though I agree with him on many issues, I have never spoken for him, and I do not intend to start now.

Knowing Mr. Veerman, I suspect that he will formulate a reasoned and measured response to last week's edition, and I will read it the same time you do. In the meantime, Mrs. Lingenfelter, I propose that you and I give each other's family a break.

Sincerely,
Michael Newhouse
Wilmington

Frasca Fields

Dear Editor,
I enjoyed reading the story "No fooling around at Frasca Field." I feel it should have been on the front page! Unfortunately, we had no idea about the need for donations/volunteers. We will be contacting Mr. Spencer to be on the list to help out for next year.

Thank you,

Veerman responds

Dear Editor:
Please accept this response to Ms. Ilona Lingenfelter's letter to your paper last week. I had no intention of giving the chicken story further "legs," but as her correspondence makes several personal attacks upon me, I feel I should set some things straight.

First of all Ms. Lingenfelter, I do live in Wilmington. Although I was not born here, I consider the affection I have for our town like that of an adopted child. Just as such a parent assures this child that he is especially loved since he or she was chosen, so I care for Wilmington.

Second, although I am a lawyer (what kind of penance need I make for this transgression?), my education indeed did not extend to the transmission of chicken-borne diseases. I do not think one needs to take out any school loans, however, to understand that although humans do not lay eggs, we do eat them from time to time.

Third, I have two wonderful children myself, and do not need a lecture from anyone about protecting them from harm. Where we differ, however, is whether it is appropriate to endanger the health and well-being of others in order to make a crude point, or act out personal anger.

Ms. Lingenfelter, I wholeheartedly appreciate, understand and respect your inclination to defend your husband. But let's talk turkey. From what I understand, one month passed between your husband's complaint to the Board of Health and when he took his reckless action. There is one thing I learned in school; in this country there is something called Due Process of Law. When an individual feels he or she has a valid grievance, there exists a proper manner in which to address it. Maybe I am off base here, but taking a dead animal and dumping it at a public place of business does not satisfy the reasonable man standard.

Let's Hear it!!

Your Two Cents...

Why is this town so gung-ho to buy an old decrepit farm house with no architectural integrity (Does that bay window have leaded glass?), and with no future use until after extensive and, presumably, expensive repairs and updates? Why would this town so depleted of wild and wooded areas think to trade more of that open space to reduce the purchase price for this useless building? Why not spend money and effort at preserving real "historical" Wilmington- the wooded wild place that existed before the spray started (Mr. Butters being one of the first developers)? And why not develop accessible trails, so even our wheel-chaired citizens could enjoy the woods on a Saturday; since they can't fit in our public library.

Wilmington

Has anyone else noticed that the cell tower at the South Fire Station is not even close to straight? We should paint windows on it and tell everyone it is a replica of the leaning Tower of Pisa.

Tewksbury

Wait a minute! Town Counsel's firm wants us to believe that being evicted is just part of routine lease negotiations? Isn't that like saying being fired is just part of the annual salary review process?

Quick Health Tips

by Dr. Leslee Quick

Acid/Alkaline Balance

There are so many things we have to "watch" now...cholesterol, calories, blood pressure, carbohydrates, etc. But what many people fail to think about, and what truly could be the greatest measure of health is your pH. How acidic or alkaline are you?

Acidity and alkalinity are measured by the pH (potential of hydrogen) scale. Water has a pH of 7.0 and is considered neither acid nor alkaline. The human body, on the other hand, needs to be slightly alkaline to maintain homeostasis, or balance. A healthy person should register a pH between 7.2 and 7.5. But with the typical diet, we have a tendency to be more acidic than alkaline.

If your pH is between 6.0 and 6.5, you are mildly acidic and could, therefore, be developing one or more of 150 degenerative diseases. If your pH is below 6.0 - highly acidic - you will have become very mineral deficient and have already developed illnesses and disease at this point. But why?

Your body needs to maintain a specific pH for proper functioning. An imbalance promotes the following unhealthy conditions:

- Cancer loves an acidic environment. Studies show that cancerous cells can't thrive in an alkaline medium.
- Osteoporosis. When the body is acidic, it will respond by stealing alkalizing minerals to restore balance. Minerals are in the highest content in the bones. Therefore, these minerals are stolen from the bones in order to stabilize pH. The bones become osteoporotic from demineralization.
- Decreased antioxidant activity. Free radical oxidation is encouraged in an acid medium.
- Lowered pH leads to decreased muscle permeability, blocking the absorption of nutrients into the cells.

- Fatigue, decreased energy and mood changes due to decreased cellular APT (energy) production. The heartbeat can be altered by acidic wastes due to diminished tissue oxygenation.

- Excessive acidic wastes create added labor for the lungs.
- Decreased pancreas function. To create optimal blood sugar balance, the pancreas requires an alkaline diet.

- Of all organs, the kidneys probably take the brunt of damage from acid wastes. The kidneys work ceaselessly to maintain blood alkalinity. Within the last three minutes, your kidneys have filtered approximately one liter of your blood. Research has shown that stones are composed of waste acid cells and mineral salts.

- Toxins cannot be thoroughly removed via the kidneys, liver, and intestines. This creates greater susceptibility to infections and headaches.

- Deficient sleep. You find yourself needing more sleep to compensate for poor-quality sleep. Difficulty in awakening is usually a sign of excess acidity.

- Decreased lymphatic function. Your lymph system is responsible for all your immunity circulation throughout your body. An acid environment slows the movement of the lymph system.

Now, even if your body is considered somewhat acidic, it is usually a subclinical condition. This means you don't have to run to the Emergency Room. To make sure the air is clear, what I am speaking of is not necessarily what we know of as acidosis, which is classified as either respiratory or metabolic, depending on the cause.

To address further, respiratory acidosis is created when the lungs fail to excrete the carbon dioxide as a byproduct of oxygenation; excessive carbon dioxide causes an extremely rapid acid environment that can be deadly. Common lung diseases that lead to respiratory acidosis include: chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), severe asthma or airway obstruction.

Although what I have been discussing constitutes the second classification of metabolic acidosis, a medical diagnosis of this type usually occurs from kidney failure, shock, Diabetes Mellitus type I, and poisoning. What we've been discussing is a slower, subclinical version of metabolic acidosis that over time, creates small amounts of "poisoning" to the system; not a sudden impact.

A balanced diet contains 40% acid forming foods and 60% alkaline. To test your pH level, you can purchase pH strips, or one of the several pH test kits available in the market today or call your health care provider to have it checked. Saliva testing is not the most accurate method of testing but it can give you a basic idea of where you may stand on the pH scale.

Due to the fact that many of my patients see me for relief from a number of the degenerative disorders caused by acidity, I always keep pH strips available. And lo and behold, without fail, 99% of my symptomatic patients are at least slightly acidic. Those with a history of cancer and invasive diseases are highly acidic.

Below is an example of acidic versus alkaline foods. For a more comprehensive listing please ask your doctor.

Acidic Foods ... such as fast foods, meats, grains, greens, most fruits, refined salt, sugar, condiments (pickles, ketchup, etc.), soda etc. have a pH ranging from 2.8 to 5.5 which is highly acidic.

Alkaline Foods ... All earth vegetables, almonds, melons, figs, dates, natural yogurt, cheese and some dairy, apricots, avocados, coconut, grapes, molasses, raisins... are all alkaline forming foods.

And don't forget...emotions... The pH of the body is also greatly influenced by emotions. Happy emotions create alkaline-forming chemical reactions in the body, whereas, those that are filled with anger, fear, jealousy, hate, etc. create acidic chemical reaction in the body.

I hope this provides another tidbit of healthy advice. Here's to your health...naturally.

Letter to the editor

Jolly Rogues off to China

Dear Editor,

Our dynamic, unique, lively, versatile 18th and 19th Century historical music group "The Jolly Rogues" has been invited to perform at the "Meet in Beijing Arts Festival" along with other venues in The People's Republic of China from April 28th to May 7th 2006. We shall be the only American musical participant at this pop culture event and consider it a singular honor to be so selected.

"The Jolly Rogues" (4 male musicians/singers) along with the sometimes accompanying "The Ladies Remembered" perform music of the 18th and early 19th Century (ballads, tavern tunes, children's ditties, sea songs, shanties, popular songs) related to our nation's beginnings, while always attired in clothing of that period. We began as a volunteer group, "The Hartwell Players," in 1999 to interpret colonial music for Minute Man National Historical Park in Concord, where we are all members of The Guild of Historic Interpreters. "The Rogues" formed as a professional group in 2001 and made its first appearance in Concord. Since then we have played our music with its unique manner of presentation throughout New England and New York in addition to tours of England (2004 and 2005; numerous BBC appearances and benefits for historical sites), Wales (2004) and Germany (2005, Baltic Sea Festival). We are excited at the prospect of taking our heritage, culture, history and music to the people of China.

The Festival is co-hosted by The Ministry of Culture, People's Republic of China; The People's Government of Beijing Municipality; and The People's Republic of China Administration of Radio, Film and Television. In preparation for the upcoming Summer Olympics to be held in China, their Olympic Committee will also be involved this year. We have been in regular contact with representatives of the Ministry and the Festival. Aside performances at Chaoyang Park (including opening ceremonies) with other musical groups and dance troupes, we shall also several times appear at a popular "Irish Bar" in Peking near the University and at numerous other venues currently being arranged by our hosts. It is expected that hundreds of thousands of people will see us perform over nine days.

The members of our group perform musically as an avocation while holding positions in higher education (deans), municipal government, federal government (Park Service), environmental issues, tree-farming, insurance and telecommunications. We hail from Concord, Westford and Reading, MA. It is our understanding that the People's Republic will provide venues, hotels/accommodations, meals and ground transportation during our visit. We will be responsible for air transport costs from Boston to Newark, NJ to Beijing and return. We shall not receive any payment for our performances and it is our desire not to obtain financial assistance from any aspect of government (state or federal) in order to insure that our trip is a purely cultural and people-to-people exchange. One of our international concepts is "peace through music."

Keith Hyland of Tewksbury inducted into National Honor Society at Austin Prep

READING, - Thirty-six students at Austin Preparatory School were recently inducted into the school's chapter of the National Honor Society. The sophomores and junior inductees were chosen by a panel of Austin faculty and administration. They were chosen because of their scholarship, leadership, service, and character, the pillars of the National Honor Society. Specifically, students maintain a 3.3 (B+) minimum grade point average, demonstrate leadership and involvement in the school community, volunteer and provide dependable assistance to others, and exemplify fine character.

Bob Duffy, a 1972 Austin graduate and staff columnist for the Boston Globe, was the keynote speaker for the ceremony. He stressed the importance of finding one's true passion in looking towards the future. Duffy told the audience, "I knew I wanted to be a writer when I was eleven years old. I don't worry about whether or not your job will pay well, worry about whether or not it will make you happy." Duffy, a Stoneham resident, was a three-year member of Austin Preparatory School's National Honor Society. He remembers honing his interest in writing during his time there thanks to many great teachers and their positive reinforcement. His daughter, Laura, is currently a junior at Austin.

Keith Hyland of Tewksbury, a sophomore at Austin Preparatory School, was honored as an inductee into the National Honor Society. He is the son of James and Lori Hyland.

PUBLIC NOTICE Annual Water Main Flushing Program

On Monday, April 24, 2006 the Water Department will begin its annual water main flushing and valve exercising program. The flushing program will be conducted on Monday through Friday from 8:00 P.M. until 12:00 A.M. The program will take approximately 8 weeks to complete.

Flushing the water mains aids in removing sediments that collect in the pipe line resulting in improved water quality. Unfortunately, this work may temporarily cause some discolored water but should become clear after running your cold water for a few minutes. The water will remain safe to drink during this program.

If you have any questions or problems with your water, please call the Superintendent's Office at (978) 658-4711. We wish to thank you in advance for your patience in this endeavor.

Middlesex District Attorney's office and Middlesex partnerships for youth, Inc. Hosted in-service training on citizenship, in Wilmington

WILMINGTON - On Tuesday, April 4, 2006, the Middlesex District Attorney's Office and Middlesex Partnerships for Youth, Inc. hosted an in-service training session in Wilmington, discussing "Citizenship in Action." Lisa Sjostrom, Ed.M., spoke at this event.

The hands-on "Citizenship in Action" workshop presents effective ways to educate students to be thoughtful, involved citizens in every community to which they belong. School staff members learn practical pedagogical tools that can be put into immediate use to help students develop a greater sense of social awareness and responsibility. Participants are introduced to Citizenship in Action (CIA), a middle-school curriculum that brings to life six core democratic principles: justice, equality, free speech, rights and responsibilities, democracy, and citizenship. CIA can be effectively incorporated into English and Social Studies classes and easily adapted for use with high-school students. The curriculum includes debates, interviews, social action projects, and historical analysis.

Lisa Sjostrom, Ed.M., has co-authored a number of widely-acclaimed publications and curricula dealing with youth social trends and behaviors. Throughout her career, she has taught students of all ages, from kindergarten to high school, as well as on the college level at schools including Wellesley College and Harvard University. Her areas of expertise include risk and resiliency, bullying prevention, eating disorders prevention, community building, gender equity, and child development.

Middlesex Partnerships for Youth, Inc. (MPY) is a non-profit organization established in 1988 by the Middlesex District Attorney's Office and ten school districts to foster communication on school-related legal issues relating to substance abuse and violence. Through Project Alliance, MPY's primary initiative, the non-profit provides prevention and intervention resources, as well as training and programming to Middlesex school districts and communities using a combination of educational outreach, technical support, and community-based strategy development to address a variety of youth health and safety issues. MPY now includes approximately 60 member school districts. For more information on Middlesex Partnerships for Youth, Inc. and Project Alliance, please visit www.projectalliance.org.

This in-service training session was held at Wilmington Middle School. Approximately 20 school staff members were in attendance, including teachers and other school staff members.

Horizons for Homeless Children

Horizons for Homeless Children is seeking fun-loving, dependable people to play and develop relationships with children living in family homeless shelters in Northeastern Massachusetts. A commitment of one 2-hour shift per week is required for at least 6 months. Our next training will be held on Tuesday, May 16th and Wednesday, May 17th from 6 to 9 p.m. For more information about the program, or to register for a training, please visit www.horizonsforhomelesschildren.org or call 978-557-2182.

Horizons for Homeless Children (HHC) is a statewide non-profit organization dedicated to providing programs and services throughout Massachusetts for homeless children and their families. Through HHC's Playspace Programs, homeless children across the state are provided with playrooms in their shelters staffed by caring, trained volunteer Playspace Activity Leaders (PALs) who engage them in fun activities and educational play. There are currently 20 Playspaces in Northeastern Massachusetts, including 2 in the Wilmington/Tewksbury area, and the program continues to expand. While we are lucky to have 120 PALs at the moment—each committed to spending 2 hours a week playing with homeless children in their area—demand for PALs continues to grow. To meet this demand, more PALs are needed both to staff new Playspaces and to start additional Playspace shifts at existing Playspaces. This may be exactly the sort of opportunity to get involved that members of your community have been looking for! In order to help us reach these people, we would sincerely appreciate it if you could include the following volunteer listing in your paper. The more new PALs who join us for our next training on the evenings of May 16th and May 17th, the more Playspace hours we can provide for the family shelters in your community that are clamoring for them.

If you have any questions about HHC, the Playspace Programs, or this volunteer opportunity, please feel free to email me or call me at 978-557-2182.

I-93 / I-95 Interchange examined

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

STONEHAM - The more than 100 people in attendance at the I-93/I-95 Interchange Study Informational Meeting held in Stoneham last week were assured by members of the study's Task Force that noise abatement and the minimizing of land takings were two of the top criteria being considered in the study of options to improve the interchange.

"The primary goal we have insisted on is no taking of private property," Stoneham Selectman Tony Kennedy, a member of the Task Force said. The reduction of noise is also an issue. How to mitigate the noise here has been taken into consideration. "I am optimistic we will end up with a win-win situation." Kennedy also noted that the present study was a result of a previous study, done without any community input from the three adjoining communities - Reading, Stoneham and Woburn - that ended with all previous plans being scrapped. That study had recommended the taking of 60 to 70 homes abutting the interchange.

Bob Frey, manager of Statewide Planning with the Massachusetts Executive office of Transportation, who is coordinating this study, said, "We recognized there was a need for a fresh start and to consider all the concerns."

He added, "One of the problems is the avoidance of property takings. We heard the concerns loud and clear in the previous study and included that goal in all decisions."

Frey stressed, "This is a new effort and not a continuation of the previous study. All previous designs have been taken off the table, mainly because they did not stay within the right of way."

Woburn City Councilor Darlene Bruen, a task force member whose neighborhood was targeted during the first go around, conveyed the message from the City of Woburn that everyone from the mayor on down was behind the work of the task force.

She noted that Woburn understands the importance of the interchange to the economy of the area.

Bruen, the Alderman of Ward 5 which includes the interchange, then said, "We will not support any plans that adversely affect residential properties and business properties. I think we are working toward the right plan."

She added that her optimism was not as strong as Kennedy's and said, "Three years ago I was very pessimistic. Now I am optimistic. I won't say it will be a win-win, but it will only hurt everybody a little bit."

Reading Selectman and Task Force Member Camille Anthony said, "This group is looking for a solution without land takings and one that will improve the quality of life in the three communities."

Anthony also expressed her hope that the solutions will go beyond just the area of the interchange. She would like to see a study to improve the whole Route 128 corridor.

In his opening remarks

Kennedy, who acted as host of the meeting in Stoneham Town Hall, said, "As everybody knows, it's a problem; a big problem. It is not just the traffic we encounter but the congestion."

"Reading, Woburn and Stoneham have given input not only to what is a good idea but also to what is a bad idea. By October or November we hope we can come up with what is a good solution."

Frey added, "The Task Force has been included in all the major decisions of the study including bringing the engineering consultants on in the fall of 2004."

One of the facts delivered during the forum was that the interchange is the busiest in Massachusetts handling over 377,000 vehicle trips per-day. It has been estimated that within 20 years the interchange, with no improvements being made, will handle over 457,000 vehicle trips.

The increase is being projected on estimated business and residential developments in areas north and west of this area. The interchange is a major connector from New Hampshire to Boston and points south.

National Park Service Presents:

5th annual Doors Open Lowell; May 4 - 6

National Park Service Lowell National U.S. Department of the Interior Historical Park

On May 4 through May 6, Lowell is throwing open its doors again during National Preservation Month. Doors Open Lowell provides an inside look at over thirty of Lowell's historic buildings, many not normally open to the public. The buildings, located citywide, will be open Thursday and Friday evening, as well as all day Saturday.

The event is a celebration of urban living and culture where people and preservation have made Lowell a creative and exciting place to live and work. Tour everything from residential lofts in 19th century commercial buildings, offices and homes within former textile mills to historic civic, and community buildings still in use today. Look for returning favorites this year and exciting new additions to the roster of participating buildings.

Also back for a third year is Doors Unhinged!, an exhibition and silent auction of a collection of whimsical, artistically created and enhanced doors produced by the local cultural community, located at the Pollard Exchange Building, 67 Middle Street.

Doors Open events happen annually in over 47 countries. In 2002, Lowell was the first city in the United States to launch this prestigious event dedicated to built heritage, architecture, and design.

Share the beauty of the area

Here's an opportunity to share the beauty of the Wilmington / Tewksbury area with others less fortunate: Volunteer for The Fresh Air Fund and host an inner-city child. This summer, join thousands of volunteer host families in 13 northeastern states and Canada as they open their hearts and homes to New York City children from low-income communities through The Fund's Friendly Town program. The Friendly Town program allows youngsters from New York City to experience simple summer pleasures like skipping rocks across a lake, smelling newly cut grass and making new suburban and country friends.

"It's really quiet and you see the stars at night here. At home, you only see street lights," explained 11-year-old Fresh Air child Antonette. Imagine summertime swimming, playing in the backyard, or gazing at the stars. Since 1877, The Fresh Air Fund has provided more than 1.7 million inner-city children with the opportunity to enjoy these simple pleasures. In 2006, The Fund celebrates its 130th Anniversary of serving children with a wide variety of special events and volunteer opportunities. For more information on how you can make summer special for a Fresh Air child, call Christine Hume at (802) 869-2448, or The Fresh Air Fund at (800) 367-0003. You can also learn more about the Friendly Town program by visiting The Fund's Web site at www.freshair.org.

Owned Myron Engineering; 70

DRACUT - William R. Witkum, age 70, the retired owner of a Wilmington company and a conservation activist in Dracut, died Saturday, April 8, at the Kindred Hospital in Peabody, from complications following a stroke he suffered on December 28th.

He was born in Lowell, July 5, 1935, the son of William A. and Anne E. (Shimkus) Witkum. He was raised in Tewksbury and graduated from Tewksbury Memorial High School. He had lived in Dracut for the past four decades.

School Matters

Inside information ~

One sure way to know everything that's going on with your children, their school, the central office, the School Committee, network with other parents (you know already how much your kids will love that).

As of this month, and maybe gone already, the following PAC openings are available at Dewing:

The secretary position will be available next year. Job duties include preparing the monthly agenda, taking minutes at the monthly meeting, keeping copies of PAC related forms and volunteers. This position does not require a parent to be in school during the day, so a full-time working mom could do this. According to the Dewing PAC, it is a pretty easy job. Please contact Debbie Hurley for more information; she will be glad to talk to anyone interested and can be reached at 978-640-0880.

The newsletter position will also be available next year. Job duties include compiling articles from teachers and PAC members, putting the paper together, and then finally distributing newsletters to the children once a month. Please contact Leslie at 978-863-1412 or less-frost@comcast.net if you are interested.

Should those jobs have disappeared, what with the job market picking up, not to worry: a wealth of volunteer opportunities is always available to every resourceful parent.

Walk, don't roll ~

A reminder from North St.: Please make sure students do not wear "roller wheel" sneakers to school. The footwear has posed some safety concerns in the schools and on the busses.

Catching up with curriculum

The message is this, with much help from Assistant Superintendent Loreen R. Bradley and a current calendar: the testing season has come and gone in the following ways: Iowa Test of Basic Skills, Grade 7, February 27 - March 10; Iowa Test of Basic Skills, Grade 6, March 6 - 17; Iowa Test of Basic Skills, Grade 2, March 27 - April 7; M.C.A.S. - English Language Arts, Grades 3 - 8, 10 March 27 - April 7; and M.C.A.S. - Long Composition, Grades 4, 7, & 10, March 28.

Test-taking strategies to help your child succeed... next time: make sure your child gets enough sleep; ensure that your child eats a healthy breakfast; be sure your child gets up early enough so that s/he will be on time for school; have your child dress in something that s/he likes to wear. Being comfortable is important!

Test-taking tips for your child: Stay relaxed, if you begin to get nervous, take a few deep breaths to relax yourself; read directions slowly and carefully; don't worry about how fast other people finish their tests - just concentrate on your own; don't rush but pace yourself; read the entire question, look for keywords; write legibly; always read the whole question - don't make assumptions about what the question might be asking.

When you are finished, review your answers, and be sure you've answered all the questions. Watch out for careless mistakes, and always proofread your essay and/or short-answer questions.

Ryan.com? ~

The Ryan School PAC teamed with the SurfWatch Safety Partnership recently to present a program for parents on the dangers present online and ways to use filtering technology and smart surfing techniques to protect kids.

High society: classy, too ~

The membership of the Tewksbury Memorial High School Student Council consists, according to its website, of the president, vice-president, recording secretary, corresponding secretary, treasurer, vice-presidents of each class council, delegates at large, and student representative to the Tewksbury School Committee.

"These students work diligently," notes the site, "to promote spirit and pride among our school's students. They have the opportunity to develop their organizational and leadership skills throughout the school year working on a wide array of pro-active activities such as orientation, homecoming week, spirit days, rallies, motivational assemblies, school elections, charitable, and community work. The advisor and executive team may name any student who wants to initiate or work on a project for the Student Council as a delegate. All members as described above are voting members."

Comprehensive services, individually and systemwide ~

A comprehensive special education program comprising the full continuum of special education programs and services is available to every student who resides in Tewksbury who meets eligibility criteria as a child in need of special education," notes Michele F. DeAngelis, Ed. D., Director of Student Services for the Tewksbury Public Schools.

"Pre-referral, screening, referral, and multidisciplinary evaluation are among the array of services available through the Tewksbury Public Schools to Tewksbury residents ages 3 through 21," continues DeAngelis. "These varied, multifaceted services are designed to determine whether or not a child is eligible for special education and are implemented in each school site and systemwide within the district by expert and credentialed professionals who include but are not limited to early childhood specialists, moderate special needs specialists, speech and language pathologists, school adjustment counselors, school psychologists, a registered occupational therapist, a certified occupational therapy assistant, a registered physical therapist, ABA and behavior specialists, educational support instructional aides, school principals, and classroom teachers."

For more information about special education programs and services and parent/legal guardian/student rights as they relate to special education, please contact the principal of the school in your area, the Special Education Department at (978) 640-7818, or DeAngelis.

With a poem in their pockets ...

"We received word that more of our students' work will be published in this year's edition of 'Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans,'" reports North Intermediate Principal Michele Caira Norton.

The Anthology of Poetry (AOP) is the forum that recognizes writing excellence in students from kindergarten through grade 12. It selects and publishes the finest poems and short stories submitted by student writers, and provides teachers with an objective forum for their students' creations.

Every year, the AOP publishes professional anthologies of students' poems and short stories, in soft and hard cover formats. Authors are selected for their writing expertise, and the purchase of a book, according to the AOP website, is never a factor in the selection process.

Since its first publication debuted over 15 years ago, the group receives "poems and short stories that are a joy to read. The creativity expressed by our student writers inspires us to continue to encourage wonderful writing through our anthologies."

Congratulations go to Austin Aiesi, Natalie Harris, Emily Barrasso, Kyle Dore, Dan Sullivan, Paige MacDonald, Matthew Ruff, Nathan Ricardo, Eric Stenson, Zachary O'Neil, and Jocelyn McCoy!

Chew on this ~

Magnetic forces revisited ~

West Intermediate fifth graders found themselves strangely attracted to MIT's Mr. Magnet last week as they explored the ... could we call them 'principles'? ... of magnetism through demonstrations and experiments calculated to prove that some work and some play can set the spine 'atingle.' Maybe it was his personality.

The presentation addressed the following fundamentals and answered several questions:

What would we do without magnets? "Everyday we come into contact with many different magnets. Credit cards have a magnetic stripe; audio and video tape recorders use magnetic tape; a speaker requires two magnets (a permanent magnet and an electromagnet) to make the sound that we hear; televisions use an electromagnet to "write" the picture on the TV screen; our clothes washers and dryers have electric (magnetic) motors; automobiles use dozens of tiny permanent magnet motors, solenoid magnets and magnetic sensors."

What makes up a magnet? The Mr. Magnet program examines "actions of the 'magnetic force' like push and pull (attraction and repulsion) as well as the following: What are north and south poles? What is the difference between a permanent magnet and an electromagnet? How is the earth like a giant magnet? How does a compass work?"

Have you ever seen magnetism? "The 'magnetic field' of a magnet can be made visible using iron powder. The magnetism surrounding a wire carrying electrical current can be seen, proving the existence of 'electromagnetism.'"

What materials are attracted to a magnet? Why do magnets stick to your refrigerator? Is your cat magnetic? "Wood, plastic, aluminum, copper, brass, and steel are tested for magnetic properties. Cheerios are magnetic because they contain iron."

What four metals are attracted to a magnet? "Magnets always attract iron, nickel, gadolinium, and cobalt because these four materials can be 'magnetized.'"

Electricity makes magnetism via the electromagnet: "An electromagnet is made from a coil of wire. When electricity is flowing in the wire, magnetism surrounds the coil. You can pick up magnetic materials and release them by shutting off the electricity."

Magnetism makes electricity via the electric generator: "Passing a coil of wire through a large magnet causes electricity to flow in the wire."

How is electricity generated using magnetism? How much electricity can you crank using the "kid"-powered generator? Electricity and the magnetic force together? Just combine an electric motor and a speaker: "A motor shaft rotates because of the magnetic force between the 'armature' magnet and 'field' magnet. A speaker converts electrical current, changing with the beat of the music into sound."

Thanks, again, go to the Shawsheen/West PAC ... for all its fieldwork.

Up and coming ~

The Middle School Teacher Appreciation Breakfast will be held on Friday May 5th. Please consider the possibility of donating a food item on that day to share your appreciation for staff and administrators. The April PAC meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, April 25th; the May PAC meeting is scheduled for Tuesday, May 16th.

Be careful what you wish for? ~

"Could there really be so much snow coming?" asked Woburn St. third grade teacher Tracy Jansen, in a letter to families on Friday, February 10. "I have enjoyed the mild weather this season, but I wouldn't mind being snowed in on Sunday. Have a peaceful weekend!"

But then it all melted.

This vacation should prove different.

Olin meets EPA

Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) on September 20, 1994 as the result of the discharging of wastewater to unlined lagoons and ditches by previous property owners over a period of many years. Tier 1A Sites are overseen by the DEP and a piece of land is categorized as such only if it possesses contaminants that impact a town's water supply.

The estimated limits of contaminant migration appear to nearly double the size of the property, extending as far as Chestnut Street and the Maple Meadow Landfill in Wilmington and into Woburn by the Municipal Landfill.

In October 2004, after overseeing the site for a decade, DEP officials felt that nomination of the Olin site to the NPL was in order, citing that progress in the remediation of the site had reached a standstill due to a difference in technical opinions between the agency and Olin. DEP officials asserted that the EPA, as a federal agency with more financial resources, technical resources, and enforcement powers, would prove to be more effective in the continued clean up.

To qualify for placement on the NPL, a site is evaluated through a "Hazard Ranking System," which is a numerically based screening system that uses information gathered from the site. Groundwater migration, surface water migration, soil exposure, and air migration are the four pathways evaluated. All four pathways must add up to 29 on the Hazard Ranking System in order to qualify a site for NPL placement.

"The Olin property scored enough for (NPL) listing based on groundwater alone," Christopher Pyott of DEP said at Thursday night's meeting. Stephen Morrow, of Olin Corporation, provided an update on the work that has thus far been done to remediate the site, but Rep. James Miceli (Wilm-D) was more interested in discussing Olin's decision to sell the property to New Jersey-based New England Transrail (NET). NET proposes to construct a solid waste reload facility on the property. Wilmington and Woburn have vehemently opposed the project, which would transload various materials, including construction debris, contaminated soils, liquid chemicals, newsprint, non-hazardous waste, and other products, from trucks to rail road cars. NET estimates that the facility will generate roughly 400 truck trips per day.

"I've seen all the disruption and misery caused by this company over the years," Miceli said. "How could you, after all of this, get a company like Transrail, which is going to put this town under?"

"If we clean up this property so that it is acceptable for commercial and industrial use and can be sold, we have the right to sell it," Morrow replied.

"You may have the legal right, but you don't have the moral right," Miceli said. "Is that really your answer to this? I would have thought that you'd do something to atone for your sins - and your company has sinned."

Morrow stated that Olin would continue to work with DEP and EPA so that the site would be brought to a point acceptable for commercial and industrial use.

"It is not my job to determine who the property is sold to," Morrow said.

The EPA will work closely with DEP during the transition process and will utilize some of the data previously collected, but will also perform a comprehensive investigation and assessment of risks.

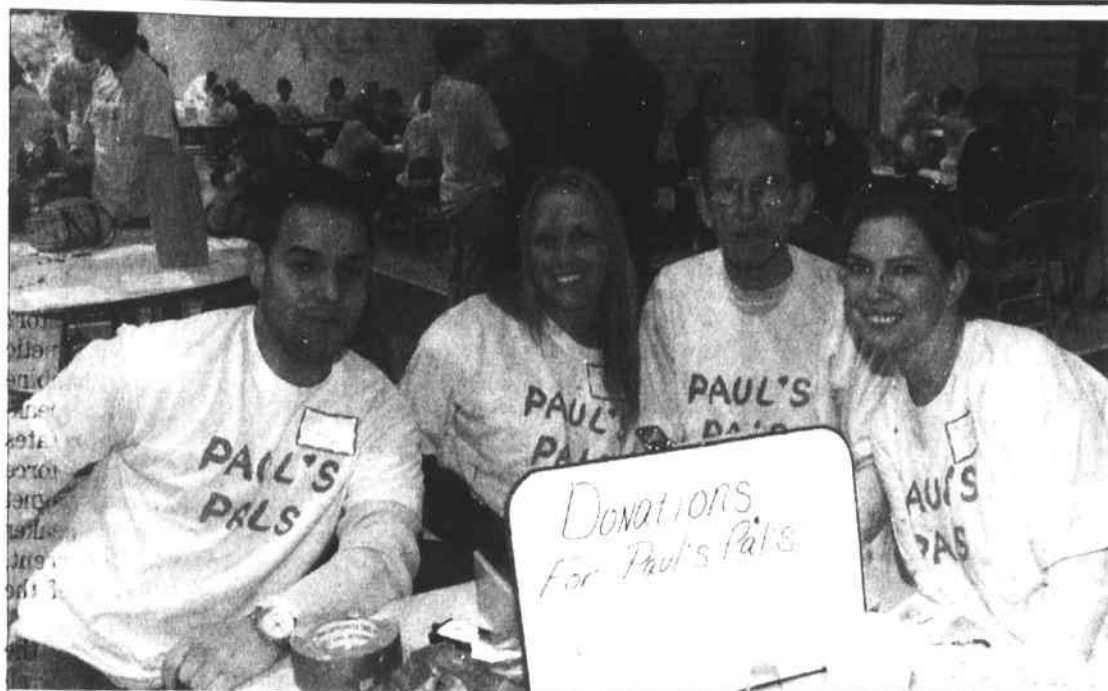

In addition History of the 51 Eames Street property:

In 1953 a chemical manufacturing facility was constructed at Olin's current location on Eames Street and was subsequently owned and operated by at least three different companies prior to Olin's purchase of the property in 1980.

The facility primarily manufactured chemical blowing agents, stabilizers, antioxidants and other specialty chemicals for the rubber and plastics industry and generated liquid waste, which was disposed of onsite.

Wastewater was not the only form of contamination introduced to the site. Drums containing organic chemicals were buried on the property and there are reports of spills of leaks of various chemicals.

Massachusetts General Law 21E was enacted in 1983 and in the Olin property was first listed as a Location to Be Investigated by the DEP in 1987. Olin applied for a Waiver of Approvals, which was granted by the DEP in 1989 and classified the property as a Non-Priority Site. It was believed at that time that any contaminants were contained to the property and had no impact on the town water supply.

Fire Dept

Shortly after the BFRP announced the regulations in February of 2006, Wilmington Fire Chief Daniel Stewart and Tewksbury Fire Chief Rick Mackey released a statement to the Town Crier that informed homeowners that as of March 31, 2006, carbon monoxide alarms are required in all residences with potential sources of carbon monoxide. The vast majority of homes will not be required to install hard-wired systems, although where hard-wired systems are required by regulation, the deadline is January 1, 2007.

Who is impacted by this law? Generally speaking, anyone who owns residential property regardless of size (i.e. one- & two-family homes, multi-family buildings, apartments, condominiums and townhouses, etc.) that contains fossil fuel burning equipment (i.e. oil, gas, wood, coal, etc.) or contains enclosed parking (i.e. an attached or enclosed garage).

For most residential buildings, the new regulations require carbon monoxide alarms on every level of the home or dwelling unit including habitable portions of basements and attics. On levels with sleeping areas the alarms must be placed within ten feet of the bedroom doors. The regulations allow the following options for carbon monoxide detectors:

- Battery operated with battery monitoring; or
- Plug-ins with battery backup; or
- Hard-wired with battery backup; or
- Low voltage system; or
- Wireless; or
- Qualified combination smoke and carbon monoxide alarm (alarms that have simulated voice and tone alarms that clearly distinguish between the two types of emergencies).

Fire departments are currently required to inspect smoke alarms when homes are being sold and transferred. With the passing of the March 31st deadline, fire departments will now include carbon monoxide alarms in their inspections. Homeowners are encouraged to check with their local fire department.

"The Wilmington Fire Department stands ready to educate and assist homeowners meet the new requirement for carbon monoxide alarms," states Wilmington Fire Chief Daniel Stewart.

Tewksbury Fire Department is similarly prepared.

Says Chief Rick Mackey, "This law is a great thing, and the State is keeping it simple." Wilmington residents with questions can call 978-658-3346.

Tewksbury residents can call 978-640-4410 to have their questions answered.

The Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Fire Services has prepared A Consumer's Guide to Massachusetts Requirements for Carbon Monoxide Alarms. This guide and information about the regulations can be obtained the local fire departments and on the DFS website at <http://www.mass.gov/dfs/osfm/pubed/firesafetytopics/carbon-monoxide-safety.htm>.

No parking

the Pubic Buildings Department (the former fire station).

According to Begonis, there are approximately a dozen vehicles now utilizing the public parking spaces on Adelaide Street on a daily basis.

"We believe this number will only increase in the near future," Begonis said.

The spaces along Adelaide Street are primarily designated for people to access Rotary Park and the Public Safety Building. Space for police and fire vehicles, relegated to the lot located in the rear of the building, is limited and private vehicles do sometimes infringe upon that area during times in which the park is busy, such as during Little League games.

"We have experienced private vehicles parking in the Cruiser area as well as lining the apparatus turn-around area immediately to the rear of the building," Begonis said. "This area is critical to the performance of our public safety mission and should be clear of public parking in case of emergencies."

Begonis requested that a two-hour parking restriction be set on Adelaide Street during the hours of 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday. Such restrictions are not expected to interfere with Rotary Park activities, the bulk of which occur on weekends and after 4:00 p.m. on weekdays.

"The Public Safety Departments are aware of the need for parking access for the area's recreational use," Begonis said. "We continue to encourage this utilization and have coexisted with the competing needs of public and official business. We believe that this solution will address the recent displacement of commuter parking and preempt difficulties created by this additional parking."

The Board voted unanimously to enact the restrictions as requested. Notices will be posted through the Town Clerk's office and signs will be erected along Adelaide Street. Flyers will be placed on the windshields of vehicles currently utilizing the area as a means of alerting the vehicle-owners to the upcoming restrictions.

Mills mall still a go

Financial difficulties being experienced by Mills not discussed

By JAYNE W. MILLER

TEWKSBURY - At the April 11th Board of Selectmen meeting, representatives from the Merrimack Valley Planning Commission (MVPC), several design and engineering firms and Mills Corp. met with town leaders to discuss the proposed I-93 interchange, the Mills Mall, and the clean-up of the Sutton Brook Disposal Area.

Howard Muise of VHB, Inc., an infrastructure design and engineering consulting firm managing the Interchange Justification Study, presented nine interchange alternatives as part of the study. Several of these alternatives require access to local roads on the west side of the highway, meaning connecting to South or Salem Streets in Tewksbury. Muise acknowledged that the town had already voted for no local access, but the Federal Highway Authority requires consideration of local access as part of the study.

Bob Kelley, a resident of Mill Street, asked a few questions and pointed out to the Board of Selectmen and the engineering consultants that the zoning article passed by Tewksbury for the overlay district included a provision that no local access be considered as part of the interchange.

Currently the advisory committee is analyzing and working with the Interchange Justification Study. So far they have met with the town of Andover and are setting up a similar meeting with Wilmington. As the group refines results they plan to report back during public meetings to share info with the three communities. Information on those public meetings will be available through town clerk offices and through the local papers.

David Wahr, a regional consultant to Mills Corp who has generally acted as the face of Mills for Tewksbury, was unable to attend Tuesday's meeting. Richard O'Neill, attorney for the Perkins Trust which owns the land upon which the proposed 750,000 square foot shopping and entertainment complex would be built, attended in his place. O'Neill confirmed that Mills Corp continues to pursue this project, though no mention was made of Mills' current legal and financial woes either from the Board of Selectmen or from the Mills side of the table.

James D'Angelo a Principal for TEC inc, an environmental, planning and engineering firm, joined O'Neill at the table before the Board. Over the course of his presentation D'Angelo maintained that the project is considered more of a "regional infrastructure facility" for the three communities rather than a Mills project, though the entire mall project is predicated on the passage of a ramp at this interchange.

Located approximately one mile south of Exit 42, Dascumb Road, and one mile north of Exit 41, Rt. 125 in Wilmington, the interchange would include a ramp on the east side of the highway to alleviate commuter traffic traveling through the Ballardvale neighborhood in Andover to Wyeth and Gillette. The mall project needs a ramp on the west side of the highway without access to local roads. Interchange alternative number nine, a modi-

Annual Election

it reflected the concept of Smart Growth embraced by the Town's Master Plan and how it might compare to the Neighborhood Activity Center Overlay District proposed for North Wilmington.

The candidates were split. Incumbent West believes that the Crystal Commons project, which is slated for construction at 10 Burlington Avenue, does support the concept of Smart Growth but that it had no comparison to the Neighborhood Activity Center Overlay District proposed for North Wilmington. Candidates Fiore and Tighe support the Crystal Commons project feeling that not only is it within the spirit of the Master Plan, but it also puts the Town of Wilmington into compliance with state regulations for 10 percent affordable housing. Candidate Lingenfelter expressed his opinion that while the town could use more affordable housing units, the Crystal Commons project is in an already congested area and will result in too much density in this particular area.

In light of the voters' recent rejection of the Library project, candidates were asked what capital improvement projects they thought could, and should, become a reality.

Again the candidates were divided in their positions. Tighe and Fiore both believe that the long-awaited fire-substation in North Wilmington should be the top priority. As Candidate Fiore opined, "I think the people down there deserve it."

West would support the substation, but also feels that other projects such as the Shawsheen School Kidspace playground and improvements to the intersection of Glen Road and Middlesex Avenue should take priority.

Lingenfelter stated, "I think when they rejected the library the voters really said that they didn't want to have another debt exclusion at this time. The town needs to follow through on the studies that are in process. Unless the studies say that there is an urgent need for something, I would - perhaps on new construction - lay a little low and just try to focus our efforts on increased public building maintenance."

When asked how they would have voted in the reappointment of the Town Manager and what changes would they have proposed to the existing contract, candidates Fiore, Tighe and West all responded that they fully support the reappointment of Michael Cairra as Town Manager. Fiore praised Mr. Cairra by stating, "If you look at the fiscal health of the town and the other towns around us over the last few years, how can you say that he hasn't done a good job?"

Candidate Lingenfelter voiced dissent as he stated that "I would not have voted to reappoint him if I had a chance to vote."

As to what they would change in the Manager's contract, only West commented that there were things in the contract, such as severance and appraisals, that he did not support three years ago. Because he is currently involved in the negotiations for the Town Manager's new contract, he left it at that.

All of the candidates agreed that this campaign, as compared with other years, has been a "nice" one. In fact, all of the candidates appeared to be in good humor and quite respectful of one another.

Another issue on which all four candidates agreed is the Town's high legal costs. Unilaterally, they stated that the reason for such high costs is the number of environmentally-based cases in which the Town is currently involved.

All of the candidates viewed Warrant Article 20 of the upcoming Annual Town Meeting, which seeks the purchase of the Butter's Farm property, favorably.

Once again, however, when asked what they hoped to accomplish in three years (each assuming he was elected), the candidates diverged.

Lingenfelter's goals are to see a different Town Manager in office; that 10 percent affordable housing for Chapter 40B is achieved; that the citizens have a Board of Health and Building Department that will treat residents fairly; and to change the culture of Town Hall.

Tighe's goals are to keep taxes to a minimum and to revisit the rising costs of healthcare.

"At my age, I hope to be alive in three years," Tighe joked.

West's goals are to keep Transrail out of Wilmington; put a cap on Maple Meadow Landfill; purchase the Butter's Farm; complete the school and municipal buildings feasibility studies; have plans to build a North Wilmington fire substation and to continue to work positively with Olin.

Fiore's goals are to find other ways to supplement the Town's budget and to conclude the outstanding environmental issues.

Once the questions were turned over to the public, candidates were asked how they would make themselves accessible to their constituents. All candidates stated that they would be accessible by home phone, cell phone, email, pre-arranged meeting and impromptu meetings as they are out and about in the community; on the job (Fiore) or at the grocery store (West and Lingenfelter).

When asked "what makes you the best candidate", Charlie Fiore responded that he has a "pretty good idea of what people want. I grew up in Wilmington, am raising my kids in Wilmington. I spent 10 years on the Housing Authority and I am always out there in the community."

George Lingenfelter responded in much the same way, adding that he has "no vested business interest in town," and that he has specialized knowledge in regard to the environmental issues that are facing the town right now.

With his dry sense of humor, Tighe feels his age is a good asset as he is, "twice as old as his opponents." On the serious side, however, Tighe stated that he has "been in town most of my life. I have served the town successfully many times in the past, and now that I am retired, I have the time to serve my town."

Frank West believes that the reason he has been successful over the last three years is that he is able to view the issues that face the town "from a historical perspective, as a life-long resident and as a business owner." He believes this unique perspective helps him to bring "balance to the board."

Reminder to all voters, the Town Election is Saturday, April 15th. Polls will open at 10:00 a.m. Town Moderator Jim Stewart encourages voters one and all to "be a part of the most democratic process in the world."

Butters Farm

now Wilmington. William Butters was the man who, in 1730, approached the Woburn minister to petition for a new church, a necessary step in establishing a new town. He was a member of town's first Board of Selectmen.

The house dates back nearly two-thirds of the way to Columbus' discovery of America. It was already 94 years old when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

It is what is known as a "First Period" house, i.e. built between 1620 and 1725. Houses of this vintage are now extremely scarce. There are only 347 First Period houses remaining in Massachusetts.

There is one house still standing in town that is older, the Benjamin Buck house on Wildwood Street. That was recently sold to a developer who has put a new foundation under it. But he kept the house on its original site.

Moving the Butters house would be a travesty, said Carolyn Harris, chair of the Wilmington Historic Commission. It would endanger the very structure of the house. Also, it is believed there are ancient tunnels under the house that would be destroyed if the house were to be moved. And moving it from its original location would make it difficult to qualify for listing on the National Historic Register.

The commission has had the house examined by a nationally-known expert on First Period houses, who found many rare examples of First Period construction, including hand-carved joists, Roman numerals on the framing, and the slope of the roof. One door in the house appears to have come from an even older house. "There are some really exciting construction elements," said Harris.

The Historical Commission, said Harris, has a reasonable plan for the house, and has a good track record on its projects.

The commission is seeking to have the town buy the house for $450,000. That money, she said, would eventually come back to the town, since the plan is to eventually sell the house. At town meeting, the commission will be seeking $348,000 to fund the purchase.

To qualify for grants it has to be owned by the town and on the National Register of Historic Places. It has already qualified for the Natl Register, but the town has to own it to proceed with the nomination.

The commission has raised over $92,000, including a state grant of $70,000 for the project, secured through the efforts of Rep. Jim Miceli and Sen. Bruce Tarr. That money is in the form of an emergency preservation grant from the Mass. Secretary of State and the Mass. Historical Commission. The terms of the grant are that a purchase and sale agreement must be signed by June 30.

Once the house is bought, the commission would put historic easements on the property, list it on the National Historic Register, restore it, and then sell it. Although the money would be on the town books as appropriated for a purchase, the commission would consider it a loan, to be repaid to the town, said Harris. Fundraising for the project will continue, she said, and any money left over and money from the sale of the property will go back to the town.

Harris said the house would best be protected in the long run by being inhabited by a family, much as it has been for over 300 years. She said there is a good market for First Period houses.

Developer Joe Langone has been very cooperative, she said. All he asks is that the town buy the house for the price he paid, and that it be improved. He has built a subdivision behind the house, called Butters Farm Estates.

Having the Butters Farmhouse at the entrance to the subdivision is a plus for the subdivision, said Harris.

Mills mall

ification of a loop ramp originally presented as alternative five, accomplishes just that - a loop with ramps on both sides of the highway, meeting federal highway criteria without making a local connection to South or Salem Streets.

Neither Andover nor Wilmington have signed off on this interchange model but more meetings are set with citizen task forces and local planning agencies in the near future.

Discussion then moved to the Sutton Brook Disposal Area, potentially responsible parties (PRPs), and clean-up of the land. Mills may be ready to begin constructing the mall before the PRPs are ready for remediation of the Sutton brook site. Groundwater and storm water management therefore represent important issues. If storm water is directed toward the landfill engineers currently do not know where that water will run off and what contaminants it could potentially take with it. Current plans call for maintaining the wetlands and keeping them thriving, rather than pushing more water toward the landfill, so as not to hinder the closure of that property.

The group will appear again in front of the Board of Selectmen June 20 with more information on progress with Wilmington and Andover and the Interchange Justification Report.

Construction

Cornerstone Automotive at 580 Main Street, and continues almost up to the Woburn Street Intersection.

The project is still in Phase 1, which includes road widening, merging water mains, and ditch and drainage measures. Phase 2, which will include construction of sidewalks on both sides of the street with granite curbing, should begin in June.

Included in Phase 1 will be the demolition and complete reconstruction of the existing bridge located between Michael's Place Restaurant and the 99's Restaurant that spans Maple Meadow Brook.

Before construction crews shutdown for the winter, the Lowell Street project faced criticism for the condition of the site and for the resulting traffic jams, which often stretched far beyond the Route 38/Route 62 intersection in one direction and the Lowell Street Woburn Street intersection in the other direction.

Selectman Michael McCoy stressed the importance of two lanes of traffic for the health of the businesses on Lowell Street. A number of area merchants have approached him with those concerns.

"I support the project - it's going to look great when it's done," McCoy said. "The only message I want to get a cross to the state is to have two lanes of traffic open at all times. It helps the businesses on Lowell Street, sure, but it also helps the flow of traffic."

According to Murphy, construction work at the intersection of Lowell Street and Main Street was the primary factor in the traffic problems last fall. Since that intersection is now up to the "binder" coat, traffic flow should be impacted less this spring.

"We will do everything possible to maintain two lanes of traffic going forward," Murphy said.

CHARLES FIORE FOR SELECTMAN

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

Charles Fiore agrees that too many politicians promise to lower taxes, without offering any solutions. He believes that Wilmington must shift as much of the tax burden as possible onto the commercial and industrial taxpayers. He also believes that the Town must promote traffic friendly and environmentally responsible businesses in town, to bring much needed revenues to support local services.

INITIATIVE

When Charles Fiore sees a problem, he focuses on solving it, not talking about it. He knows that it's not always easy to make decisions as a public official, but he never shies away from the responsibility. As a Selectman, Charles would spend more time worrying about what is right, than he would arguing about who is right.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR HOUSING

As a long standing member of the Wilmington Housing Authority, Charles Fiore is well aware of the housing challenges confronting our seniors and young families alike. He supports diversified housing opportunities and innovative zoning measures to provide attractive and affordable housing for Wilmington residents.

RECREATIONAL & ATHLETIC FIELDS

Charles Fiore is the only candidate who has focused on the need for recreational and athletic opportunities for our kids. He supports the use of privately owned fields at little or no cost to the town; installing lights at more of the town's ball fields; and resurfacing some of the town's fields to enable greater use of existing fields.

EXCELLENCE IN EDUCATION

Charles Fiore understands that Wilmington has been shamefully shortchanged when it comes to state funding for education. This current year, Wilmington is receiving $941 per pupil aid, Tewksbury is receiving $2,552 per pupil, and Westford is receiving $2,278 per pupil. As a Selectman, Charles will fight to finally get Wilmington's fair share.

"After September 11, 2001, when the Governor asked me to spend a few months securing Logan Airport, I made it a priority to hire a team who I could count on to work hard, be honest, and make sound decisions. Charlie Fiore possesses all of these important qualities and more. I would have been proud to have him on my team, and would wholeheartedly recommend Wilmington likewise bring him aboard as a Selectman."

John DiFava
Wilmington Resident
Retired Colonel, Massachusetts State Police

"Wilmington has benefited from sound fiscal management and professional leadership. When I cast a vote for Selectman, I am looking for an individual who will contribute to this effort, so we can continue being the envy of surrounding communities for years to come. There is only one candidate for Selectman this year I know will do the job in this regard. I am voting for Mr. Fiore and ask my neighbors to join me."

Dan Wandell
Former Wilmington Selectman
Retired Fire Chief

"I have known Charlie Fiore for many years, both in a personal and professional capacity. He has been a credit to both his profession and the Town of Wilmington, and I would encourage everyone to join me in proudly casting their vote this year for Charles Fiore for Selectman."

110th annual Boston Marathon

Fifteen Wilmington runners to hit Boston pavement

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Below is a list of the locals from Tewksbury and Wilmington, who will be participating in Monday's 110th annual 26.2 mile journey on Patriots Day, according to the Boston Marathon website (Boston-Marathon.org).

Fifteen locals from Wilmington have signed-up including veterans 54-year-old William Covino, Kenneth McGowan, Lisa Osborne, Coreen Lowney and Simonetta Piergentilli.

Eighteen locals from Tewksbury will be participating, including 24-year-old Ken Goldman, who will be competing in the wheelchair division for the first time.

Besides Goldman, several veterans from the group will be back including Michael Doherty, Marko Duffy, Judy Gallagher and Michael Linskey. Goldman also was a member of the Tewksbury High cross country team, as was Nicole Morandi, who also competed in last year's race.

If there are any additional runners (signed-up or bandit runners) who will be running on Monday, please send an email to "jamie@yourtowncrier.com".

Good luck to all of the runners.

Stukey wins for third time

Jessica Stukey took control of the Knights of Columbus State Free Throw Championship once again. Having earned her way into the State Finals at the Clark Center at UMass Boston.

Jessica set the pace early as the first shooter in the 13 year-old Girls competition. She promptly made 23-of-25 and put the pressure on the other shooters.

Jessica has also won the K of C State Championship in both the 10-and-11 year old brackets. It's a remarkable feat.

Dan Keane also represented the Wilmington K of C in the 11-year-old boys grouping and shot very well.

Thanks to all of the Wilmington shooters and their parents. We welcome you back for another crack at the Championship next year.

Participating in Hub for the first time

Jeff Walsh gears up for a rich experience on Monday

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

On Monday morning, Jeff Walsh was having a conversation with his son talking about how he had one more week to prepare for his first Boston Marathon race. His son replied by asking his father a question: "Dad, does this we're going to be rich?"

"Only the winners get money and I'm not going to win it," answered Dad with a big laugh. "So we're not going to be rich."

It was another conversation back in October that got Walsh involved in what will be the 110th annual event.

"I was out one night with my friend (Christopher Perry of Groton) and he did the marathon last year as a bandit," said Walsh. "I had turned 40 last year and I had been thinking about doing it, but he really talked me into it."

Since that first conversation, Walsh has been training very hard with Perry to prepare for Monday's 26.2 mile trek. The two of them participated in a half marathon in Hollis, New Hampshire and then recently did a 20-mile journey from Kittery, Maine to Salisbury, Mass.

Now with two long distance races under his belt, Walsh is hoping the third time is a charm. He finished the 20 mile race in two and a half hours, and said that qualifying time for the Boston Marathon in his age group is 3:20, which isn't out of the realm of possibilities. But there will be one problem.

"My friend Chris who got me involved unfortunately has to drop out," said Walsh. "He has some hip problems. He's talking about meeting up with me at the 15-mile mark to give me some support."

Walsh grew up in Tewksbury and never participated in a high school sport. After graduating in 1982, he went to Mass College of Art School and then moved to Wilmington in 1998. He has since worked for the Lowell Sun newspaper and now the Boston Herald for the past nine years working in the graphics department. In fact, one upcoming project he has at the Herald is to work on the design of the upcoming Boston Marathon special section.

"It's funny because I was looking through some old pictures of previous marathons for the section and I saw several pictures of people crawling to get to the finish line," he said. "They were on their hands and knees just to get across. I don't want to be crawling."

And while Walsh works on designing the marathon on pages, he's preparing for a perfect design on foot.

"I did an 18-miler last week when we had that strange little snow storm," he said. "That was tough. It was very grueling. Being (41) years old, running and trying to find the time to do it is very grueling. But I enjoy it. I'm really excited about (Monday)."

Walsh added that he's been an avid runner for a while now but this is as serious as the hobby has become. Like any husband and father of two young boys aged ten and seven, Walsh hasn't found as much time as he would like to hit the pavement, but feels confident, especially with the two previous races, that he's prepared both physically and emotionally.

"I think I'm ready," he said. "This past Monday I did 12 miles and now I'll go down to seven, six, five, four and two and then have a day off before the race. I feel pretty good though. My knees are banged up a little and I've have them bandaged up. I joked with my wife that I might be going to the starting line looking like 'The Return of the Mummy'."

And if that's the case of walking up the starting line looking like a Mummy, Jeff Walsh will have another rich and enjoyable conversation with his son.

Brassil and Cassidy join together

Friends rally on behalf of own friends

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Three years ago Patrick Brassil was a sophomore in college at UMass Amherst. Like any normal 19-year-old Brassil gained many friends at his new school. One of them, his roommate during his freshman year and half of his sophomore year, he'll never forget. Todd Schwartz of Westwood, had cancer before arriving to college, and in 2003 half way through the school season, he passed away.

Eight years ago, Chris Cassidy was a Wilmington High student. He played tennis, and also was the sideline cameraman for WCTV covering the high school teams, mostly football. He went on to Boston University and while attending the school he lost a high school friend of his, Kara Irving of Wilmington, who also passed away due to cancer.

Now Brassil is 22 years old and works in the human resource department for a software company. The 2001 graduate of WHS played a little tennis but never was a member of the track or cross country teams. Last July he participated in his first road race, a short two mile journey and he had to stop half way through to walk and recover.

Cassidy was along side of Brassil during that two mile run and helped him get to the finish line. And now the 25-year-old, who just recently moved to Somerville and works as a news reporter for the Salem Evening News, is back with Brassil for a much bigger event. The two friends will be participating in Monday's 110th annual Boston Marathon, on behalf of the Leukemia Lymphoma Society, and in memories of their two friends.

"Todd had cancer before he got to UMass," said Brassil. "He was in remission and then he came back doing great and was getting his chemo. But during the middle of sophomore year, he left the school and then he passed away the end of my sophomore year. He had a tumor near his heart."

Brassil was never a runner. He said all along he knew Cassidy through the relationship he had with Eric Brassil, Patrick's older brother. And that's when the idea came of participating in the 26.2 mile trek together.

"I never ran in high school or college," said Cassidy. "I played tennis and I enjoyed running but didn't do it a lot. I went to BU and every Patriots Day I would see all of the runners and I guess that just got a little contagious for me. I went out for a four mile run and I just said to myself, 'OK let's try this marathon thing'."

But in order to get a number one of two things had to happen. Either Cassidy had to qualify for it by finishing in a certain time of another marathon, or he had to raise money for a charity.

"I ended up going on the Boston Marathon website and I was looking over the charities and I decided on the Leukemia Lymphoma Society," said Cassidy. "My only dealing with that was Kara Irving and with her story, I wanted to run for that charity. I guess that gave me a lot of motivation."

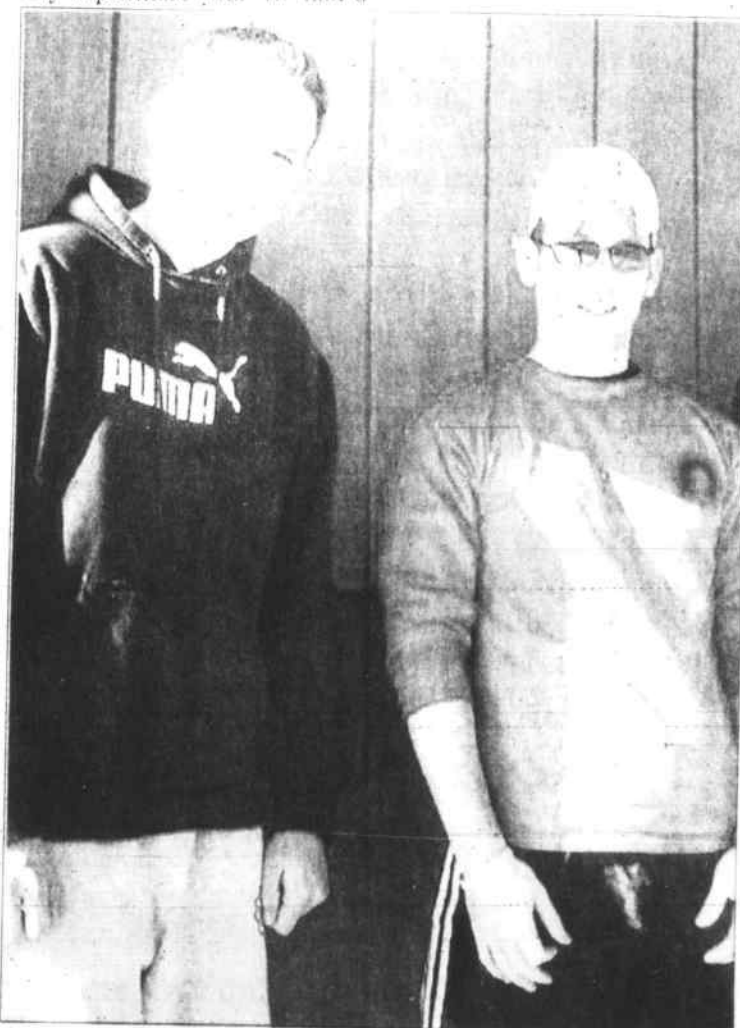

Cassidy participated in last year's marathon. He raised $5,200 for the Society and ended up finishing the marathon at the four and a half hour mark. He said that day he'll never forget the rest of his life.

"All I cared about last year was finishing," he said. "The experience was so great and just unbelievable. The whole day you feel like a Rock Star. From the starting line all the way until the finish line, people are just cheering for you everywhere."

"The entire way they show their support for you. If you write your name on your sleeves, people call you out by name the entire race."

"The scenery is great with Wellesley College and everything, but when you get to Heart Break Hill, BC and

Hornets sting Wildcat boys with tough loss

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High boys tennis team got their season under way this past week, with two incomplete matches and one very tough loss.

The Wildcats actually opened their season back on Friday, March 31 at Newburyport, but had the match called due to darkness while trailing 2-1, and on Monday April 3 the Wildcats led Amesbury 2-1 when the match was called due to rain.

Finally last Thursday The Wildcats were able to complete a match, but unfortunately the results were not quite what they would have liked as they dropped a heartbreaking 3-2 decision at North Reading, losing the final match of the day in a three set tiebreaker.

The victim in the final match of the day was a newcomer to the team, junior John Olivere in second singles who fell by a score of 4-6, 6-1, 7-6 (7-3) to North Reading freshman Jason Pacino.

"We knew he must be quite a player to be playing as a freshman, but John went out there and battled," coach Matt Hackett said. "He played well in the first and he dominated the second. Someone had to win and unfortunately it was not John."

"I was impressed with the way he played though. It was his first tight match and it will be something he learns from."

The Wildcats two victories on the day came from their doubles combinations, led by the first doubles team of seniors Mike Auciello and Dan Kline who won in dramatic fashion 6-2, 6-7 (4-6), 7-5.

"They've been playing really well. It's only been a few matches, but these guys seem like they are ready to have a great season," Hackett said. "That second set could have been a backbreaker for them with the way they lost, but they bounced back well. That was huge for us at the time because at that point the match was still in doubt."

The second doubles team of junior Kyle Borsetti and Zach Church was also very impressive in rolling to a 6-0, 6-1 win.

"They were playing a couple of kids who were a lot less experienced," Hackett said. "The expression to play within yourself is kind of corny, but that is exactly what they did. They did what they had to do and made the right shots when they had to."

The mere fact that the Wildcats were in a position to take advantage of a more inexperienced opponent was a nice change for Hackett.

"That was real nice," Hackett said. "It's been a while since we have been able to say that. Hopefully that is something we can take advantage of this year."

The 2006 Wilmington High girls tennis team got the season underway this past week under the direction of head coach Kevin Welch, and his co-captains, Amanda Miles (left) and Taryn Martinello (right).

Friends rally on behalf of own friends

Kenmore Square, having all of that support is what gets you through. Just when you think you don't have anything left on miles 22 and 23, those people cheering for you keep you going. You feel like they are all cheering just for you. It's a day like no other. It's such a great moment that you never want to see end."

And that's all Brassil wants to do, is be there standing tall at the end of the race. He has since raised close to $3,000 and has come such a long way from stopping in the middle of a two mile race, to run 20 miles without stopping.

"I was never a runner," he said. "I did that two mile road race last July and I had to stop in the middle of it and walk a distance. But we have been training through the Leukemia Society. There's about 150 of us and we meet for Saturday runs so I feel pretty good. The last run was eight miles but we have done 20 miles."

"I'm ready for it but I want it to be over. Chris just told me that it's going to be the best experience of my life. It's been so much fun running with the team, running with Chris and pushing each other, and possibly being able to show him up.

But this is all possible because of him. He got me going. But the charity is the main reason I'm doing this."

If you would like to donate to the Leukemia Lymphoma Society on behalf of Patrick Brassil and Chris Cassidy, you may do so by logging on to their website "bostonbound.org". In addition, the two of them will be hosting a fund-raiser for the Society, set for April 29th at the Kitty O'Shea's Pub in Fanueil Hall from 7 to 10:00 pm.

WHS Girls Tennis Preview

Looking to get back into the swing of it

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The Wilmington High girls tennis team kicked off their season last week in hopes of improving on last year's 2-13 record, and with several returning starters off of that team, coach Kevin Welch is confident his squad can make some steps in the right direction. While many players last season were getting their first taste of varsity tennis, this season features those same players with a year's worth of competition behind them.

"You go into every season saying that you want to make the tournament, but obviously going from two wins to the eight wins we need would be a very big improvement," Welch said. "If we can be competitive match in and match out we will win some matches, and I think we can do that."

Leading the way among the returnees for the Wildcats will be number one singles players Amanda Miles, a senior co-captain who earned a 6-2, 6-3 win in the team's first match of the year on Monday April 3 against Amesbury, a match the Wildcats would eventually lose by a score of 3-2.

"Amanda has developed a good court presence and knows how to play different points," Welch said. "She has developed a solid foundation of ground strokes, but tennis is more than that, and she now knows how to hit the ball in the right spot."

The team's other co-captain, junior Taryn Martinello will play second singles and is another player who seems to have benefited from last year's experience.

"She is steady. Last year was her first full year of varsity tennis. She knows a little more of what to expect this year," Welch said.

Third singles has yet to be completely decided upon, but in the 3-2 loss to Amesbury, they did get an outstanding effort from junior Jill Manganelli.

"It was her first varsity match and it was very encouraging," Welch said. "She has a very good chance of staying at number three."

First doubles may be a position of strength for the Wildcats with a pair of sophomore returning to the starting roles they earned as just freshman last season. Daniella Miles and Taylor Kindred showed their potential with a 6-1, 6-4 win in the Amesbury match and will be looking to build on that.

"It's huge to have them back playing together," Welch said. "They have confidence in each other and they know where they are going to be as a team. They are still only sophomores and have a lot of growing to do because they face juniors and seniors in every match, but they handle it pretty well."

Second doubles will feature junior Katie Duncan, while Welch is still searching for the right partner for her. While he still has yet to make a final decision, he has been happy with what has seen from Alyssa Bibeau.

"Katie will be the foundation of the second doubles and we just want to find her the partner that is most compatible," Welch said. "She and Alyssa lost a close match against Amesbury and I think I they played together more often they could pick up some wins."

The Wildcats will continue their season with matches on Wednesday at Manchester. In their second match of the season last Thursday against North Reading, the Wildcats lost by a score of 5-0, while getting strong effort from their doubles combination of Miles and Kindred who fell by a score of 3-6, 6-4, 6-3.

Wilmington was also defeated on Monday by Billerica, 5-0, to fall to 0-3 on the season. In the non league match, Taryn Martinello put up a good effort losing in straight sets 6-3, 6-4, as did the doubles combination of Danielle Miles and Taylor Kinder who lost 7-5, 6-2.

Four run inning enough against Amesbury

Defensive changes help softball team beat returning state finalist

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Two years ago right before the season began, Wilmington High girls softball coach Bob Surran made several positions changes to his line-up which eventually worked well helping the team share the Cape Ann League title.

After watching his team make five errors in their 7-0 season opening loss to Tewksbury last Thursday afternoon, Surran made several changes and for one game anyway, it certainly worked.

After losing to Amesbury

seven straight times, the Wildcats defeated the returning Division 2 state finalist, 4-3, on Monday afternoon to even the team's record at 1-1.

"We played good, tight defense (on Monday)," said Surran. "I think these moves will work and we'll be a much better team. I think once Cathy (Sheerin) gets going on the mound, and the kids get a little more comfortable, we're going to be a really good team."

Surran moved sophomore shortstop Katie Cole to second base, making the throws easier. She displayed tremendous range on Monday according to Surran. Senior Brittany Collins moved from third base to shortstop, and Surran said she'll be fine there. He then moved Maggie Sorrentino from second base back to her left field spot she controlled last year, and switched left fielder Lauren Westerberg to center, and previous center fielder Kim Ciampa to third base.

"I think one of the problems we had was normally I try to get five scrimmages before the season starts," said Surran. "Because of scheduling conflicts we were only able to get three, and two of those were rained out. So we had just one scrimmage before the Tewksbury game, and I think the girls were just very tentative in that game."

Trailing 2-0 after two innings, Wilmington scored all four of its runs in the top of the third with key hits from Westerberg, Stephanie Steeves and Ciampa. Amesbury added a run in the bottom half of the inning and the 'Cats were able to hang on for the one-run victory.

"This is a real good win for us. We had lost to them seven straight times before (Monday). I have 16 losses here (as coach) and seven are to them," said Surran with a laugh.

Sheerin picked up the win on the mound giving up just one earned run on five hits, while she walked four and struck out eight.

Against Tewksbury, the Redmen belted a pair of home runs, including a three-run shot by Sheran Elliott in the third inning and a two-run blast by Michelle Kelley in the sixth. Wilmington made five errors on the game, and had several mental lapses as well, which led to two unearned runs. Sheerin struck out nine and walked four in the losing effort.

Wilmington had just three hits against Tewksbury as Westerberg had a single. Ciampa had a double and Cole laced a two-out triple just inside the left field line but was eventually stranded.

The 'Cats are back at Aprile Field on Friday morning to face a very tough Methuen team in a nonleague contest beginning at 10:00 am.

Wildcats steal a win away from Pentucket

By JOHN CLEMENO
Sports Correspondent

WEST NEWBURY -- Building off its 4-1 preseason, the Wilmington High baseball team opened the regular season with an impressive 8-3 road victory over Pentucket Regional on Saturday.

The Wildcats stole seven bases, used timely hitting up and down the batting order, and took advantage of Sachem miscues to score in every inning but the sixth.

"It's nice to get that first one under our belt," said Wilmington manager Aldo Caira. "It was a real confidence builder for us after working hard all spring. We got a great bunch of guys. They're not cocky, but they feel they will win every time they take the field."

Brian Caira allowed three runs on four hits and three walks in 4 2/3 innings to pick up the victory while Tom Miele finished up with 2 1/3 innings of scoreless relief. Both pitchers were backed up by stellar defense as the Wildcats turned three double plays.

On offense, junior Andy Strathman (four stolen bases) and sophomore Kyle Moon had two hits while senior Alex Montalto knocked in three runs for the opportunistic Wildcats.

"We have a bunch of kids that like to swing the bat and get the ball in play. Although we struck out five times, they were all swinging and I like that aggressiveness at the plate," said Caira. "In high school baseball, sometimes it's all about getting the ball in play and good things will happen. We want to force the other team to make plays. We scored three runs on one hit in the seventh inning."

After Strathman's two-out single plated Sean Murphy in the top of the first, the Sachems threatened in the bottom half of the inning. But with a runner on first and the hit-and-run on, Wilmington turned an unconventional 5-3-5 double play to get out of the inning with a 1-0 lead.

"I was talking with the Pentucket coaches after the game, and they felt that first-inning double play set the tone for the rest of the game," said Caira. "And it was real encouraging for us. We took that early lead and they put the first man on and tried to hit-and-run, but we got the double play and were able to build off that. We scored in the next inning, then turned another double play (in the second inning) and kept on building. We were in control of the whole game after that."

Moon and Montalto stroked two-out doubles in the top of the second to grab a 2-0 lead. That lead held up in the bottom of the second when, with one out and runners on first and second, shortstop Josh Mayo snared a liner and beat the runner to the bag to get out of the inning.

In the third inning, Miele singled and went to second on a balk. After a ground out, he came home on Eric Legro's double. Montalto knocked in a run with a sacrifice fly in the top of the fourth giving Wilmington a 4-0 lead.

Caira got into trouble in the bottom of the fourth inning when Pentucket scored its first two runs and were threatening for more, but Caira snared a comebacker before incurring any more damage with the Wildcats holding a 4-2 lead.

"Brian helped himself in the fourth inning to get out of the inning, but you could tell he was tiring," said Caira. "I let him start the fifth and he got the first two on ground ball outs, but they got a couple of hits and scored a run. I could tell he was tired. He threw 74 pitches and that's the most he's thrown all spring. He's building strength and will be throwing more pitches as the season wears on."

Wilmington added another run in the fifth inning thanks to the Sachems' error. Sean Murphy singled, stole second, and then came home on a grounder to short that was thrown away.

Miele relieved Caira in the bottom of the fifth and immediately gave up a hit that scored a run, but was able to get out of the inning with Wilmington leading 5-3.

"It was Tom's first experience pitching on the varsity level and I could tell he was excited and nervous, but I was real pleased with his performance," said Caira.

The Wildcats scored three insurance runs in the top of the seventh inning on just one hit. Strathman singled and stole second and third, then came home on an error. With men on first and second after Brian Caira was hit by a pitch, the Sachems booted another ground ball to let Wilmington's seventh run score. Montalto finished off the scoring with a fielder's choice RBI.

All that was left was for Miele to work himself out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the seventh.

"When they got loaded the bases, I had [Sean] Murphy warming up and ready to go," said Caira. "But with the 8-3 lead, I wanted to let Tom work it out himself. I thought it was important for his confidence and to show that I have confidence in him."

On Tuesday the Cats were defeated by Masconomet, 7-5.

The Wildcats will open their home schedule against Amesbury on Thursday at 4:45 pm, followed by another home contest Saturday morning against North Andover beginning at 10:00 am.

Souza a member of National Hockey team

Meaghan Souza, of Wilmington, traveled to Buffalo, NY last week, to play in the Girls National Championships from March 29th - April 2nd.

Meaghan plays on the Assabet Valley U12 Red team, which is coached by Carl Gray. Assabet played against some of the best U12 teams in the country to win the Nationals. They went 6-0 in the National tournament and played teams from California, Colorado, Illinois, as well as Connecticut and Massachusetts. They beat the Connecticut Polar Bears 2-0 in the championship game.

The road to the Nationals was a long one. The team held its tryouts on Labor Day and thru the month of September. There were 105 girls trying out for the team. After a month long try-out process and the ice shavings settled, there were 16 skaters on the team and two goalies.

Meaghan was asked by her coach to play forward at first. After two months, her coach moved her back to defense, which is her natural position, due to the inexperience of some of the blueliners. Her Assabet team played in both a boys' league and a girls' league, as well as in various tournaments. Some of the accomplishments of the team were, champions of the boys' league, (regular season and playoffs), champions of the girls' league, as well as winners of the RI Thanksgiving tournament, and runner-ups in the CT Christmas tournament. This team also won the Massachusetts State Championship, and therefore, represented Massachusetts at the Nationals.

The season was a long one for Meaghan. Her team practiced every Wednesday night and had skills every third Friday night. After all the games were done, her team put together a record of 65 wins, three losses and three ties.

The Assabet U12 Red team will hold its breakup gathering later in the spring, where they will receive jackets commemorating their accomplishment.

Girls track team already doubles last year's win total

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Two meets does not a season make, but for the Wilmington High girls track team things could not be looking much better two meets into the season, as they have already doubled last season's win total by getting off to a 2-0 start with wins over North Reading and Amesbury.

The Wildcats opened the season last Thursday with a hard fought 70-66 win over North Reading, and followed that up with a great effort against a weak Amesbury team, coming away with an 86-58 victory.

Coach Tom Bradley is obviously very happy with his team's start, but at the same time he is not exactly stunned by it either.

"I don't think it's any one thing that has made us better to be honest," Bradley said. "I thought we would be better than last year and be able to compete in most events and so far we have been able to do that."

One of the biggest reasons for the fast start has been the efforts of senior captain Jen Comer. Comer stepped in for Jackie Mello in the 200 meters against Amesbury and was outstanding, winning the event in a time of 28.5. She also won the 400 meters in 67.7, both personal bests.

"She is having a very good season so far," Bradley said. "We really needed her in the 200, because I felt that without her we could not get any points, and she really stepped up for us."

Freshman Carmen Palumbo had an outstanding day as well, winning the high hurdles in 17:39, and the long jump with a distance of 14-3, while also being a part of the winning 4x100 relay team.

"I could see during the winter that she had talent running the hurdles," Bradley said. "Very often hurdlers will be good athletes so we tried her in the long jump with Mello out and she won it. With Jackie out she will now be our top long jumper, and I would be surprised if she is not up to 15 feet by the end of the year."

Joining Palumbo in the 4x100 were Kayla Henson, Leah Kaplan and Amanda Ciula. Stephanie Baima took first place in the high jump with a height of 5-2.

"That was fabulous for her," Bradley said. "In the winter she jumped 5-0 and last year at this time she was jumping 4-8."

Alicia Murray took first place in the 800 meters in a time of 2:41. Breanne Bozzella took the mile in 6:06 and Natalie Russo won the two mile in 12:45.

The Wildcats were equally as effective in the field events with Ashley Poirier winning the discus with a throw of 73-3 and Nadia Prinzivalli winning the shot put at 29-8.

But Bradley acknowledged that Amesbury was a weak opponent and he should have expected a victory. The win that had him most impressed was the nail biter against North Reading that was in doubt until the 4 x 400 relay team of Russo, Comer, Murray and Bozzella pulled out a win on the last event of the day.

Other winners against North Reading included Mello in the 100 (13.1) and the long jump (14-6). Baima in the high jump (5-0), Poirier in the discus (69-10), Russo in the two mile (12:38) and Murray in the 800 meters 2:45.

With the team off to such a great start, Bradley is not getting too excited, not with Triton and Newburyport on tap for Thursday afternoon in a tri-meet.

"Triton looks good and Newburyport lost to North Andover by one point, so that are doing very well," Bradley said. "If we are competitive in both meets, I will feel like I know a lot more about our team."

The Wilmington Squirt D team is off to the finals in both Dual State and Valley League as the team had a busy weekend. An early morning game of cat and mouse is what cats desire at 6am, but not the Wildcats Squirt D. They would rather be playing their No. 1 competitor in a Valley League playoff game. This game would feature the Andover Squirt Girls team, who with no doubt showed up to play hard today as they always do.

The first period showed signs that this was going to be a tough game. Brodie Curtis was called upon as goalie right away to make some big saves. Gerry O'Reilly and Kody Dunnett would have to make some key clears out of the zone. The offense would also have many chances with both lines pressing. Tristan Weymouth and Kevin Dufrey holding the blue line. Jonathan Keating and Brandon Gentile would come close in the first period but Andover would hold the Cats scoreless.

The second period started off the same way for the first couple of shifts until hard work payed off as Sam D'Angelo, working behind the net hit Brandon Gentile to the left side of the net. Brandon would slide the puck over to Nick Brown, who scored with a top corner shot. Andover turned it up a notch as they pressed the offensive attack. Brodie Curtis would come up huge on a break away that kept Andover scoreless. Avery Woodbury in defense was called upon to keep the puck out of the defensive end.

By the third period Austin O'Neil, Steve Parrott and Jonathan Keating was turned on their wheels as Andover had a hard time containing them. Hard work would pay off as Sam D'Angelo would take the puck behind the net, come around, center it with a pass to Jonathan Keating who made no mistake and buried it. One minute later Derek Santos would snap a shot and dive forward to poke in his own rebound.

Brandon Gentile would benefit from a line change as he rushed into a play where Steve Parrott had passed the puck to Jonathan, who quickly dished it over to Brandon who capitalized on the last goal of the game. The defense would hold strong until the end and Brodie Curtis would get his well deserved shut out.

The second game was a Dual State show down, where we had to get by Lexington/Bedford first. A game that started with a slow pace and a scoreboard delay seem to have the cats by the tail. Lexington/Bedford took advantage by scoring the first goal. This was the kick start that Wilmington needed as they started to play their game. Jonathan, Steve and Austin's aggressive play would pay dividends. Austin would break in from the blue line and wrist a bullet into the top far corner, to tie the game.

This would be the spark for the second line as they began to get their chances. Brandon's speed, Nick's passes, Derek and Sam's forechecking would keep Lexington/Bedford busy in their own end, with help from the defense of Kody and Avery. Austin was able to slide a pass over to Jonathan, who would not be denied, as the goalie made the first save and Jonathan would bury the rebound. Kevin had a heads up pass through center ice to Jonathan who would score again on a breakaway.

The third period was all defense as Jerry, Tristan, Kody, Avery and Kevin had to really step it up as Lexington/Bedford offense kept the pressure on, forcing Brodie into making some big saves in the final minutes. Ending the game in a 3 to 1 win.

Defeat North Reading and Amesbury

Wildcat boys track team off to 2-0 start

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Sometimes it is easier than others to determine just how much progress a team has made from one season to the next. It is early yet, but thus far it seems fairly easy to say that the Wilmington High boys track team has improved immensely from last season.

Last year's Wildcats posted a 4-4 record in the spring, but already this season they are out to a 2-0 start.

"Although the record is impressive, it is more the dominance the Wildcats have shown, particularly in their most recent meet at home against Amesbury on Monday afternoon when they came out on top by a final score of 101-44.

The blowout nature of the score would be impressive under any circumstances, but considering it came against an Amesbury team that had beaten the Wildcats by more than 40 points last season, it was especially satisfying for coach Bob Cripps and his squad.

"The kids have been improving and this was a nice turnaround for us," Cripps said. "We had several kids with personal bests and we swept several events like the hurdles, shot put, discus and the 200 meters."

In the Wildcats first meet of the season against North Reading on April 5, they scored an 82-62 victory. While Cripps was certainly planning on an improved team this season and is not entirely surprised by the 2-0 start, even he is a little amazed at just how large the margins of victory have been.

"I am a little surprised," Cripps said. "There are still a couple of areas we need to work on, but we are doing well."

As Cripps said, the Wildcats swept the shot put and the discus with senior Will Nieman taking the shot with a distance of 44-0, followed by Matt Martin and Nate Clarkin. In the discus, Nick Farnsworth led the way with a distance of 108-9 followed by Martin and Clarkin.

In the javelin Shawn Fahey led the way at 153-5, a personal best which qualified him for the states, while Farnsworth and Martin complete the sweep of the throwing events.

The results were not quite as dominant in some of the other field events, but the Wildcats certainly did more than enough to maintain their solid lead. Ryan Dooley and Matt Olson tied for second in the pole vault with a vault of 8-6 while Brad Colgrove and Matt Robinson tied for second in the high jump at 5-6.

Jared Peters won the long jump with a distance of 17-6, while Olson took second in the triple jump at 37-1 and Matt Golden took third at 35-5. Colgrove also took second in the 100 meters in a time of 11.7. The Wildcats dominated may of the running events, starting with the 300 meters which Rick Fudge won in a photo finish over teammate Tom Berry in a time of 46.6, while Chris Crosby grabbed a third place finish.

They also swept the 110 meter hurdles with Mike Stewart coming away with the victory in a personal best time of 16.5. Stewart had qualified for the states in the North Reading meet with a time of 16.9. Ryan Dooley and Tyler Calway followed close behind Stewart.

"Even though Stewart had already qualified for the states, it was nice to see him knock down his time like that," Cripps said. "And the best thing about it is that they are all underclassmen."

The distance events were also very kind to the Wildcats who took second and third in both the one mile and the two mile. In the one mile Tony Karalekas too second with a personal best time of 5:09 followed by Sam

Oglesby, while in the two mile PJ Russo took second in a time of 11:15 and Eddie Silver took third.

Matt Robinson led a sweep of the 400 meters in a time of 56.3 followed by Golden and Collins. Cripps was pleased to see the results of the hard work that Robinson, one of his captain has been putting in.

"He's coming along nicely which is great to see," Cripps said. "He had not had a lot of success scoring points during winter, but now two meets in a row he has won."

Alex Chalmers led a sweep of the 800 meters in a time of 2:06.32 while freshman Bobby Folk was right on his tail at 2:08.3 and Shawn McPherson took third. Shawn Fahey led a sweep in the 200 meters in a time of 24.4, followed by Russo in 24.5 and Nick Janone in 24.6.

Finally, the combination of Crosby, Berry, Robinson and Golden took the 4 x 400 relay in a time of 3:53.

Cripps feels that part of the reason for his team's success is that they have plenty of motivation this season. Namely, they do not want to end up in a JV meet.

"We are competing in the JV meets so they know if they get beat by a kid on the JV team they will be replaced for the next meet," Cripps said.

Cripps, however, does not feel his team will need any further motivation on Thursday afternoon when they travel to Triton Regional to take on Triton and Newburyport.

"Motivation should be no problem facing two of the best teams in the league," Cripps said. "I think we are looking at the distinct possibility of a winning season."

Under 14-5 girls soccer team gets offense going early

On a pristine field in Waltham on Saturday, April 8th the Wilmington GU14-5 soccer team kicked off their spring season. Even though the wind chill was in the mid 30's this team was as hot as a pistol. Totally outplaying Waltham and winning nearly every loose ball the girls put on quite a clinic on soccer fundamentals and team tactics.

Heather Kealos got Wilmington on the score board by jumping on a goal keeper's attempted throw and blasting a left footed shot into the far corner. Wilmington's forward line had several scoring opportunities due to the super job of the midfield line of Courtney See, Lauren Cole and Samantha Reed controlling loose balls and feeding them to the streaking forwards. A short time after Wilmington struck again, this time it was the quick footwork of center Kristina Tummino laying a nice pass to left forward Alyssa Fiorentino for a great left footed high shot deep into the net.

Waltham made some nice clearing kicks to relieve pressure in their own end but, Wilmington always seemed to be there to trap the ball or play it off their body and dish it off to a teammate. Mid-fielders Meaghan Souza and Haley Robarge were doing a great job with excellent ball skills and quick crisp passes and give and go's that tired the overworked

Waltham defense. The girls worked the ball into the offensive corner and made some huge crosses. Heather Kealos did exactly that with time winding down in the first half and Kristen Keller was right there in front of the net to trap the ball and drive a hard low shot past the keeper.

Anyone who has followed this team for a while knows that sometimes the girls go into a funk at the start of the second half. It has cost us in the past. Let's just say history did not repeat itself on this chilling Saturday morning. The girls absolutely dominated the middle of the field in the second half. Elizabeth Jaeschke, Fioana Gately and Chelsey Westerberg were eating up everything in the middle throughout the second half. Even more impressive were the through balls and outlet passes they made to spring their forwards. Forwards Kristina Tummino, Jenny Garrard, Heather Kealos and Alyssa Fiorentino all had several excellent scoring chances due to superb passing and set ups. Kristina blasted a couple of patented left footed shots just wide of the net, while Heather was denting the fence just to the right of the net.

Meanwhile on defense Kaitlyn McGuire was breaking up and chasing down any offensive attempt on her defensive left side while any opponent trying to attack the defensive right side had Lori Fletcher to deal with. If that's not tough enough Kelly Flaherty was right there as well getting in on and stealing everything on her side of the field. The defensive players were so good that second half keeper Meaghan Souza only touched the ball once.

Midway through the second half Heather Kealos drove a corner kick to the middle of the eighteen and first half stonewall keeper Kelly Duffy was there to drive a low hard shot past the keeper. The girls did a sensational job working the ball to the open player. At one point right midfielder Samantha Reed passed back to right defender Kelly Flaherty who passed back to Samantha, who fed the ball to center Jenny Garrard, who played it outside to right forward Heather Kealos, who shot it just wide. Passing like that led to Wilmington's final goal. Lori Fletcher fed the ball to Lauren Cole in the middle who found Alyssa on the left side and it was another left footed goal for Alyssa.

Excellent team effort girls! Nice way to start the season! Let's keep up the great play and hard work as we welcome Medford to the Shawsheen Field this Saturday.

Shawsheen Tech Sports Round-Up

Baseball team competes at Northeast tourney

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

The season could not have gotten off to a much better start for the Shawsheen Tech baseball team. The Rams traveled to Wakefield last weekend to compete in the Northeast Regional Tournament along with Lynn Tech, Mystic Valley and host Northeast Regional and came away as tournament champions with victories on Friday over the host Golden Knights and Sunday over Lynn Tech.

Things got off to a great start on Friday with the Rams rolling to a 7-1 victory behind a great all around performance from sophomore Rob McIsaac who shined both at the plate and on the mound. Sunday may have been an even more dominating effort as the Rams rolled to a 13-4 decision over their CAC rivals from Lynn.

McIsaac, a transfer from Wilmington High, was outstanding in his first varsity start on Friday, as he allowed only one unearned run over 5 1/3 innings of work while recording five strikeouts. At the plate he helped his cause with three hits, two runs scored and an RBI.

But Rob was not the only McIsaac to have a great day, as his twin brother Steve chipped in with three hits and an RBI of his own.

"Rob set the tone for us making his first varsity start. It was a very nice varsity debut," Shawsheen coach Kevin Bloom said. "And it was that his brother helped out as well. They are both very tough competitors and it was a nice way for them to set the tone for us."

Many athletes would be nervous making their first varsity start, particularly toeing the rubber in the season opener, but that was definitely not the case for Rob, or if it was he got over it pretty quickly, as after the unearned run in the first inning he completely shut down the Golden Knights.

"Rob is very mature and he has great baseball instincts," Bloom said. "He knows and understands the game."

The Rams scored three times in the third inning to give Rob all the runs he would need, but they pulled away with a pair of runs in the fifth and single run in the sixth and seventh innings.

The championship game was scheduled for Saturday, but was postponed due to rain and moved to Sunday. It hardly mattered to the Rams who rolled to an easy victory behind tournament MVP Mike Oliveira, a junior second baseman from Tewksbury. Oliveira was 3-for-3 with a double two runs scored and a pair of RBI. This followed up his 2-for-3 effort and runs scored in the first game.

"He also made a fine defensive play for us early in the game when it was still close," Bloom said. "They had runners on first and second and he went back behind the second base bag and made a diving catch and then doubled the guy off second base. So instead of maybe a run scoring and two men on they had two outs and just one guy on."

Senior centerfielder Brandon

McCarthy also played very well, blasting a three run homer and driving in four runs from his leadoff spot. Sophomore Ron Stocker became the second pitcher in as many days to pick up his first varsity win, throwing three strong innings.

Both Northeast and Lynn Tech play in the CAC Lower Division and the Rams were set to open their CAC Upper Division on Tuesday at Greater Lowell so nobody is getting too giddy over a 2-0 start, but at the same time Bloom can't help but be impressed with his young squad so far.

"We had four sophomores getting their first varsity start against Northeast so it is kind of trial by fire, but these guys are athletes and are competitors," Bloom said. "So far they have played with confidence and are out there competing and that's all you can ask."

Softball

The Shawsheen softball team did not start off as well as their baseball counterparts in terms of wins and losses, as they lost their season opener at CAC rival Minuteman last Thursday by a score of 4-3, but the loss could hardly dampen the spirits of coach Maureen Buckley who was happy with her team's effort throughout the game and particularly in the seventh inning when they made a valiant comeback attempt before falling short and leaving the tying run on second base.

The Lady Rams took a 1-0 fourth inning lead before falling behind 2-1 in the fifth and tying it in the bottom of the sixth. Minuteman scored a pair of runs in the top of the seventh for which held up as the winning margin despite the combination of seniors Melissa Gouveia and Marissa Porter.

Gouveia led off the seventh with a double and came around to score on a hit by Porter, but Shawsheen could not plate the tying run.

"We went back and forth with them very well. You have to remember we are very young," Buckley said. "I thought we played very well, but to be honest I think we had a little young team panic in the fifth and seventh innings. We got a little rattled, but we will get over that as the season goes on."

The Rams got a strong pitching effort from freshman Kelli Jo Deardorff who had seven strikeouts and allowed just four hits in her first varsity start.

"She did an outstanding job, she just ran out of gas a little," Buckley said. "She walked six batters but three of them were in the last inning and that's more my fault for not getting her out of there. She did a great job of pitching and of keeping herself emotionally in control."

Sophomore first baseman Katie Hogan of Tewksbury had a strong opening game with a pair of hits and an RBI as well as a strong defensive game.

"She hit the ball very well, and she is really coming along. She ripped one up the middle for one of her hits," Buckley said. "She was very solid defensively. She snagged two balls going to her left. She had a great all around game."

The Lady Rams are a very young squad with several sophomores in the starting lineup, but Buckley was especially pleased to see her two seniors come through in the seventh inning.

"It was really neat to see a senior come up with a double to start the inning and another senior come up and drive her in," Buckley said. "Down the road some of these young players will drive Marissa in as well, but it's hard right now to put them in that position."

"Normally with a young team like this you might feel like you are in trouble," Buckley added. "But I feel good about this team because they are the hardest working group I have ever had and they are all listening and trying to absorb everything. If they keep doing that we will be OK."

Boys Lacrosse

The Shawsheen lacrosse team picked up their first win of the season on Monday afternoon with a 9-5 win at Blackstone Valley, evening their record at 1-1 on the young season. Previously, on April 3, the Rams had opened their season with a 5-4 overtime loss to defending Mass Technical Lacrosse League champion Northeast Regional before having a home game against Minuteman canceled last Wednesday due to inclement weather.

On Monday against Blackstone the Rams had leads of 2-0 at the end of one quarter and 3-0 midway through the second before suffering a letdown and allowing Blackstone to tie the game 3-3 at the half.

"It seemed like we just let up. I felt like the end of the half was more a case of us being lazy than us being unable to play," Shawsheen coach Chuck Baker said. "It was not a pleasant halftime show for our guys, but they came out strong in the second half and played very well."

The Rams actually went down 4-32 in the early minutes of the second half, but then exploded for five straight goals to take an 8-4 lead into the fourth quarter where they coasted to victory.

The Rams were led on offense by the senior combination of attack Dan Roy and midfielder Kyle Marzeoti. Roy had four goals and an assist in the game including two big goals during the five goal outburst, while Marzeoti had three goals and a pair of assists as well as the tying goal early in the third quarter.

Baker also coaches Marzeoti in hockey and football where he is an assistant coach so he was not surprised to see the senior be one of the key reasons for the Rams outburst.

"He's our workhorse and he will do everything for us," Baker said. "Having coached him in three sports he knows when I am not happy and he will look at me and say 'Coach I'll take care of it.' He got a big goal in the third quarter to get our scoring going."

Freshman attack Shawn Donovan of Tewksbury had a goal and four assists to help spark the Rams offense and continue what has been a solid start to the season.

"Shawn's kind of a small attack man, but he sees the field really well and he has been playing great for us," Baker said. "We have what we call a draw and drop play where you try and draw the defensemen in and then make a pass and does that very well. He sees it and he reads it perfectly."

Senior captain Aaron Stanton, a midfielder scored the other Rams goal.

Picking up assists for the Rams were senior Rich Fantasia of Tewksbury along with junior Matt Innis and sophomore Mike Arricale. Baker was especially impressed with the way Fantasia came out with a renewed sense of urgency in the second half.

"Rich showed an aggressive side in the third quarter that I had not seen from him," Baker said. "On the assist he made a great play. He had a great second half."

Freshman goalie Ryan Smith of Tewksbury had 14 saves in the victory. This followed up a 21 save performance against Northeast where he was seeing his first ever varsity competition. Baker could not be much happier with the effort he has gotten so far from his young net minder.

"He's playing great for us, and he made some great saves,"

Baker said. "Sometimes during practice we're not quite sure if he is capable of doing the job, but for some reason he gets up for games. He's a great kid and he's got a great personality. He really loves playing goal and that's what you need if you are going to be successful there."

The Rams will continue their season on Wednesday afternoon at home against MTL rival South Shore and will wrap up their week with a non-league home game against Bishop Fenwick on Saturday at 11:00 am.

Co-ed Track

The Shawsheen track team is off to a dominating start to its season, having enjoyed two blowout victories in their first two meets. Most recently the Ram boys rolled to a 97.5-38.5 victory over Nashoba Tech on Monday afternoon, while the girls rolled to an equally impressive victory.

The Nashoba meet followed a season opening 121-15 win for the boys over Assabet Valley last Thursday while the girls battled to a tough 55-50 decision.

Against Nashoba the Rams got great efforts from several of their top athletes including junior Tyler McCarthy of Tewksbury who won both the triple jump with a distance of 35-6 and the high jump with a personal best height of 5-10. This followed an even more outstanding performance against Assabet where McCarthy won the triple jump, 110 hurdles and high jump while taking second place in the 200 meters.

Coach Jay Tildsley knew based on last year's performances that McCarthy would be a force to be reckoned with this season, but he has proven to be even better than expected.

"He has stepped it up. He had the personal best in the high jump and he has also been producing in other events as well," Tildsley said. "He's been a consistent performer in each meet and he's only a junior so we know we can expect even bigger things from him next year."

Other winners on the boys side against Nashoba included senior Rich Doane in the discus with 106-9 and Dan Pynn in the shot put at 37-9, Keith Wiitala in the two mile at 12:13, Corey Fleishman in the 100 meters in 11:9, Mike Shanahan with a personal best in the one mile with a 5:07 and Chris Damp with a personal best in the 800 meters in 2:12.

Another great effort for the boys came from sophomore George D'Amilio of Wilmington who won the low hurdles in a personal best of 50.7. D'Amilio has been outstanding thus far, having taken second in the low hurdles against Assabet.

"George came into the season with one of the better forms as far as our hurdlers," Tildsley said. "He was a little awkward last year, but he looked so good this year that I actually asked him if he went to a camp or something. He posted a personal best so obviously he is doing very well."

On the girls side, the Rams got an outstanding performance from sophomore Christie Pietila against Nashoba. Pietila placed in four events including posting victories in the javelin with a distance of 61-4, the long jump with a distance of 12-6, and the 400 meters with a time of 89.1. She also took second in the shot put with a distance of 20-3.

"She was with us last year but mainly she only did the throwing events," Tildsley said. "This year she wanted to try different events and it has been working out great."

Other great efforts for the girls included junior Amanda Gagne of Wilmington who won the low hurdles in a personal best time of 60.8 and the 800 meters in 3:07, and freshman Ashley Valente who won the 100 meters in 14.6 and the 200 in 30.9.

While the competition the Rams have faced so far will likely not be the best they will face all season, that hardly diminishes the strong start they have gotten off to, and particularly the dominant way they have done it.

"I am very happy with the start," Tildsley said. "I am a little surprised with the scores. I didn't expect them to be quite so high, but we are doing very well. Our biggest meet will be Thursday against Tyngsboro, which is a little earlier in the season than we normally meet them."

The Tyngsboro meet is at home at 3:30 on Thursday.

Under 11A Girls soccer team starts season off on the right foot

The U11a Wilmington girls soccer team started off the spring season on the right foot with a win over North Reading this past Saturday. The Wildcats had been itching to get out on the grass and play for the past few weeks. As the game started the girls were caught off guard and North Reading took a quick one goal lead. Unfortunately for North Reading, it seemed to fire up the Wildcats and they turned on the offense and clamped down the defense.

The forward line of Kelsey Mangan, Taylor O'Byrne and Kristen Tavares used their speed to overwhelm the opposition. They got quality passes from mid-fielders Allie Gemellaro and Michelle Woods and were quickly able to nullify North Reading's lead. O'Byrne scored three goals in the first half and Tavares scored one, while the defensive trio of Emma Barrasso, Jane Farrell and Jackie Parece allowed only a handful of shots on Lauren McKenna in net.

The other group of offensive players, Holly Niemiec, Colleen Brothers and Gianna Tummino got some quality shots on net and a couple that just missed the corner of the goal, they were still able to keep the ball in the North Reading end of the field.

Midfielders Jackie Kennedy and Kim Woods smothered any coordinated rushes that North Reading tried to start in the neutral zone. In the second half on another Wilmington rush, Tavares passed to O'Byrne from the right side and she made a quick pass to Mangan who kicked it in the corner for the Wildcats fifth goal.

North Reading staged a late game rally and scored two goals near the end of the game and in the last minute of play they were pressuring in front of the net again, but Barrasso went down and blocked a shot and Woods covered up the rebound to take the air out of the rally.

First week of play has plenty of fun

Under 10-4 girls open season against Burlington

The GU10-4 wildcat girls opened the spring season this past Saturday against the girls from Burlington and demonstrated why they were promoted to Division 2 after a successful fall season.

Katherine McKenna provided outstanding keeper duties while the offensive strikes by Christina D'Ambrosio and Adrianna Kippenberger kept the Burlington team busy in their defensive zone most of the first half. Great anticipation of the offensive movement by Burlington from Kerry Ryan and Heather Benson in the backer slots left the Burlington team frustrated as they were not able to move the ball into the Wilmington defensive zone without being turned back or swept to the side of the field.

The second half held all the scoring in the game as Wilmington struck first on a goal from Sydney Russo at 3:53 while Burlington followed forty-five seconds later on a centering pass that bounced off the referee and was redirected to the front of the net.

Great support for the rest of the game from Emily Bamberg and Michelina Brown in the defensive slots kept the Burlington team from in front of the Wilmington net and off the scoreboard. Olivia Dellaruso and Lauren Amazeen would supply a few moments of excitement with several shots bouncing off the goal post or missing by inches as the ball rolled past the Burlington keeper. Both teams showed great resolve to win up to the final whistle as they traded runs down the field with both keepers up to anything that came their way.

Under 10A Girls put forth strong team effort

The Wilmington girls U10-A team opened its season under clouds of grey and against a tough Division 1 Concord Carlisle team. The LadyCats put forth a valiant effort and kept the fans on the edge of their seats the entire game.

The first half proved to be a battle of the goalies as Erin Hurley was tested relentlessly and passed with flying colors. Wilmington's offense tried to mount their own attack as speedy forwards Alexandra Bischoff, Carli Brent, Taylor Perella and Kaitlyn Curley made repeated rushes into the Concord zone and blasted some solid shots, but didn't find the back of the net. Luck was not on the Wildcat's side as multiple shots were ruled at the net and could be heard as they ricocheted off of the pipes.

Powerhouse defenders Kaitlyn Cowden and Rachael Mara fought hard to win the ball and continually feed their forward lines. Centermids Cassandra Grasso and Christa

Brent played masterfully mid-field as they utilized their incredible speed and ball handling ability to support both offense and defense. The first half ended with both teams knotted at 0-0.

Only minutes into the second half Concord Carlisle caught a break and scored. Wilmington kicked it into high gear as defenders Caroline Robarge, Rachel McLaren and Erin Hurley broke up many Concord drives and kept the ball away from the net. Goalie Kaitlyn Cowden made some incredible saves in net and kicked some lengthy punts nearly hitting the half line.

It was a great game and the Wilmington Wildcats kept up the fight until the very end only giving up one goal to their opponents. The final scored ended in a frustrating home opener loss to Concord Carlisle with a score of 0-1 making the Lady Wildcats hungry for a win against Woburn next week.

Under 14 girls win again

Thus past Saturday the Wilmington Wildcats U-14 Girls Indoor Soccer Team won their second consecutive championship title at the Tewksbury Sports World Center. Anthony Marino, Director of Indoor Soccer, told the team that Wilmington is the first team ever to win back to back championships in the leagues' history and complemented the girls on their awesome accomplishment.

The Open-Division Indoor league featured 12 top-flight teams including Division 1 teams from Andover, North Andover, and Woburn. And as good as these teams were, and they were very good, the Wilmington Wildcats proved to be better.

During the first of the two regular-season sessions the Wildcats earned a number one seed by going undefeated and then proceeded to win each of its three tournament matches to claim its first championship title. The second session proved to be a little more challenging for the team who earned a number three seed going into the championship tournament. Once again the Wildcats stepped up to the challenge and won each of its three post season matches - one of which was determined by a shoot out.

The coaches complemented the girls on their ability to adapt to different field positions and noted that whenever a teammate became injured or wasn't available to play, someone always seemed to be able to step up and fill the void.

The Wildcats now plan to take their winning ways and newly-honed skills outdoors during the MYSL Spring Season. They have set their sights on the highest prize available to them and will continue to dedicate themselves to becoming better every time they put on their cleats and step onto the field.

Setting the standard for excellence in career, trade and technical education

MASSACHUSETTS ASSOCIATION OF PRIVATE CAREER SCHOOLS

By DOUG WOOD-BOYLE

For those people who have not decided what to do after high school, or those that feel it is time for a change in career, it is difficult to decide the best way to proceed through the myriad of private career training institutions that offer education in specialized fields. However, one resource that will make the choices a little bit easier to discern is the North Reading based Massachusetts Association of Private Career Schools (MAPCS), which certifies its 44 member institutions.

"Our main responsibility is to provide information to proprietary schools and advise them of state and national legislation that could affect them. We also ensure that students are getting the education required from the specialty schools," said Barbara Lagergren, the president of the association and executive director of the Gould Construction Institute. "We are trying to promote the reputation of the good schools."

Membership in the organization is only open to the institutions that can meet and maintain strict guidelines. They must first of all be a private career school, as opposed to being state run or part of a larger college system.

The schools must hold all proper licensing and certifications from education agencies and from regulatory groups. All of the faculty members must be certified to teach in their subjects.

Lagergren noted, "The board looks at all the paperwork that is submitted on a monthly basis to ensure that the member schools are meeting the requirements. It is an association that oversees private career schools and keeps the schools abreast of the laws and regulations that affect them."

According to information provided by the MAPCS, established in 1947, it is a non-profit membership organization of institutions that offer training in a wide variety of career fields. Graduates of the member institution programs can earn diplomas, certifications, professional licenses or associate degrees.

Lagergren said, "The schools provide important training in most non-traditional trades such as cosmetology, art, health care, massage therapy and phlebotomy. We provide a career path for the student."

She also noted that the member schools have an advantage over more traditional forms of higher education as they are often not as expensive. Another advantage is that in many cases the programs can be completed in less than four years.

Using Gould as an example, Lagergren noted that many students attend night courses as a way to change careers. In some cases they are working in the career but are taking courses to attain licensing that will allow them to advance.

"We also have schools that compete with some of the colleges," Lagergren said.

According to the website www.mapcs.org, private career schools have been a part of the educational process in Massachusetts since the 1880s, providing students of all ages and backgrounds with up-to-date job skills in short training periods.

Training at a private career school is focused on the development of job-related skills. Instructors have extensive experience in the occupational fields which they teach. Many schools incorporate job-search techniques and life-skill development into their training programs.

Private career schools provide day and/or evening classes with courses starting throughout the year. Many schools design special programs so students can balance work commitments with study.

Speed of training may minimize student expense by cutting down on income not earned while in school. Programs vary from several weeks or months to three years, and many schools help students with federally insured loans and government grants or private tuition assistance plans. Placement assistance during school and upon graduation is included in most programs.

Each May since 1990, MAPCS has sponsored the Outstanding Student Achievement Awards. This ceremony gives member schools as well as family and friends the opportunity to honor exceptional graduates. Last year at MAPCS' 15th annual Outstanding Student Achievement Awards, thirteen students from a range of private career schools received their award at the Massachusetts State House in Boston. Senator Robert A. Antonioni, Chairman of the Joint Committee on Education, spoke at the event and offered congratulations to all the students.

BARBARA LAGERGREN, (above) is the President of the Massachusetts Association of Private Career Schools as well as executive director of the Gould Construction Institute. Private career schools provide day and evening classes with courses starting throughout the year.

Lagergren explained that each school nominates one student who best represents the educational opportunities at the school. In some cases, the student has overcome physical hardships while successfully pursuing their education.

Lagergren noted that in some cases the schools were able to adjust their instructional programs to help the student overcome disabilities.

According to the Mission statement to "promote high education."

Movie Reviews

by Paul Feely

"LUCKY NUMBER SEVEN" AN ENJOYABLE THRILLER

LUCKY NUMBER SLEVIN is a gangster film that stars Josh Hartnett (above), Bruce Willis, Lucy Liu (above), Morgan Freeman and Ben Kingsley. The movie is directed by Paul McGuigan from a screenplay by Jason Smilovic.

"LUCKY NUMBER SLEVIN"
GRADE: ***

This enjoyable thriller features colourful, offbeat performances and a sharply written script that's packed with snappy, very quotable one-liners.

Josh Hartnett stars as Slevin, an unlucky young man who accepts an offer to house-sit for his friend Nick in New York after his L.A. apartment is condemned and he discovers his girlfriend cheating on him. However, Slevin's streak of bad luck is far from over - as soon as he steps off the plane he loses his ID in a mugging incident.

Things quickly get a whole lot worse when Slevin finds himself mistaken for Nick and caught up in a deadly feud between New York gangster bosses, The Boss (Morgan Freeman) and The Rabbi (Ben Kingsley). And who is the mysterious hit-man type (Bruce Willis) lurking in the shadows?

This is a stylishly directed thriller with many twists. Hartnett's easy-going innocence is well-suited to the role and he makes a good leading man, particularly when snapping off violence-inducing wisecracks.

There's also strong support from both Freeman and Kingsley, and Willis as well.

Lucy Liu is great as Lindsey, a sweet, funny and sexy woman who falls for Slevin.

This is an enjoyable thriller with strong cult potential, due to its offbeat performances and its witty, quotable script.

MOVIE:
"BASIC INSTINCT 2"
GRADE: *

"Basic Instinct 2" is basically the same movie as its predecessor, only there's no Michael Douglas, and the setting has changed from the United States to Europe.

Sharon Stone reprises her role as Catherine Tramell, a possible serial killer who also moonlights as a best-selling mystery novelist. Her latest boyfriend, a soccer star (Stan Collymore), has turned up dead, so she again becomes a murder suspect.

This time the investigating officers bring in a forensic psychiatrist, Michael Glass (David Morrissey), to evaluate her mental state. But despite his testimony about her "risk addiction," she's set free to tear up the town once again leaving a wake of bodies in her path.

Catherine next turns up in Michael's waiting room, claiming to want his services as a therapist, and he falls prey to Catherine's seductive charms, and the cadavers begin piling up.

Filmmaker Michael Caton-Jones (2002's "City by the Sea") does his best to replicate the stylings of Paul Verhoeven, who directed the original but the script is filled with bad dialogue.

MOVIE:
"INSIDE MAN"
GRADE: ***

Spike Lee's Inside Man is dazzling. This bank-heist thriller is urgent, witty and unpredictable. It's about as much fun as a movie can be.

The film grabs you and never lets go. In the opening minutes, we meet Dalton Russell (Clive Owen), a cool, collected thief who speaks directly to the audience and tells of his plan to rob a Manhattan bank. It's not simply for the money, but because he can.

Disguised as painters, Russell and his three cohorts enter the bank. They disable the security cameras, then strip the hostages and force them to dress in masks and hoods so they're indistinguishable from the thieves.

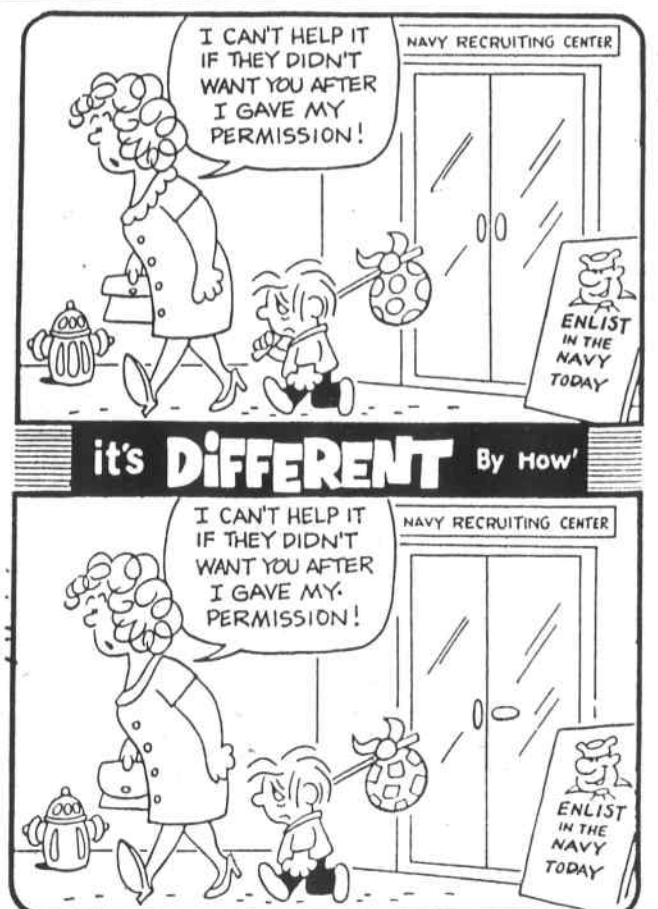

Enter Frazier (Denzel Washington), an NYPD detective with an inexperienced resume, but an eagerness to match wits with Russell. He's clever and good at reading people. He's also smart enough to know that's there's more to Russell's motives than just cleaning out a bank.

Another twist is thrown in when Madeline White (Jodie Foster), a power broker, enters the picture, out to protect something in the building that the bank's chairman (Christopher Plummer) wants to keep hidden. To say more would be to give away too much.

In addition to the cops and robbers games, the movie touches on questions of race. When a hostage sporting a turban is released, the police shout, "He's an Arab!" "I'm a Sikh," the terrified man says, and it's sad and funny at the same time. In another sequence, Russell is shocked to see a violent handheld video game depicting the gangsta lifestyle. "I'm going to have to have a talk with your father," he wearily tells the child playing the game.

Spike Lee has never directed a thriller before, but he shows he has mastered the genre and has a blast with this one.

The three top-billed performers are terrific. Owen has the difficult job of delivering most of his performance through a mask, but his icy calm is eerie and powerful. Foster sheds her recent victim roles (Panic Room, Flightplan) to become take-no-prisoners White, and she attacks the role with an electricity that chills. Washington oozes charisma in his role and projects a power that is smooth and slightly dangerous.

There are seven differences in the second picture. Can you spot them?
ANSWERS: FIRE FLUO, POCKETBOOK, COLLAR, WOMAN'S ARM, BOY'S ARM, HANDLE, BACK.

MOVIE:
"V FOR VENDETTA"
GRADE: ***

In a futuristic, fascist England, one masked man hopes anarchy will rescue his fellow citizens from fear and compliance. A young woman stands with him to lead the revolution.

V For Vendetta is massive popcorn entertainment, a blockbusterish undertaking with a great cast and even a few ideas wedged into the exhilarating action sequences.

You can watch without too much guilt.

Hugo Weaving stars as V, a masked man intent upon saving England and her citizens from a controlling government.

V For Vendetta is what you might call a political thriller. While America crumbles into a pit of war and corruption, England is under the thumb of a tyrannical government. People have a curfew and dare not step out of line, have a thought or protest anything lest they be taken away and made to disappear.

A young woman named Evey (Natalie Portman) gets caught outside after curfew and is about to be set upon by government thugs when she is saved by a strange man in a Guy Fawkes mask.

He is V. Evey winds up in the secret lair of V, her terrorist/rescuer, who lives somewhere underground in London. His flat is jammed with books and paintings and all manner of rescued

About the Towns

by Phyllis Nissen

IN AND OUT AND ALL AROUND

In the road (Burlington)

"The Board of Selectmen voted unanimously to adopt traffic control regulation standards," notes the Burlington edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The document, drafted by Police Safety Officer Bernie Schipelliti and Patrolmen Kevin Cooney, with input from other departments, attempts to standardize traffic signs, signals, and markings throughout town."

"Selectmen Chairman Gary Gianino lauded the efforts of the officers in putting together the document, stating the town needs consistency in its communication to motorists."

"It was announced that the town has received $14,000 in the latest round of grants from the Homeland Security Department."

"Earlier rounds of funding have been used by the town for training, upgrading of equipment, and improving communications."

"The town has worked to comply with federal reporting requirements in order to maintain eligibility for the security funds...."

In the press (Winchester)

"It's back to school for Court Crandall," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"A few years ago, it was the Will Farrell comedy, 'Old School.' Now, with his new children's book, 'Hugville,' he's got Octopus Hugs, Tornado Hugs, and even a Hugville Grade School."

"Crandall, who wrote the first two versions of the big hit movie, 'Old School,' is from Winchester, and was a former sports writer for the Daily Times Chronicle. Now Crandall is a professional screenwriter and creative partner at Ground Zero Advertising in Marina Del Rey, California.

"Hugville (now on sale from Random House Books for Young Readers, $13.95), written by Crandall and illustrated by Joe Murray, depicts the town where a simple gesture of affection is redefined through a wacky, playful adventure for parents and their children. In Hugville, you can learn how to perch on one leg with the Chicken Hug, to scratch and rub with the Itchy Dog Hug, and jump up and down with the Pogo Stick Hug."

"Crandall explains his motivation. 'A few years ago, my oldest son started getting a little too old and too cool to want to hug dad much. The way I saw it, I had a choice: I could accept that we had made the inevitable transition from hugs to high-fives, or, I could make hugging more fun,' Crandall said."

"I chose the latter, creating a series of crazy hugs that ranged from the Monkey Hug, where you scratch under your arms and pick fleas off each other to the Tornado Hug, where you twirl through the room, then follow your hug with a dustpan and broom."

"Within a week, Chase was not only eager to hug dad, but requesting his favorite hugs and telling his friends about it. At the point other parents started asking me to explain the Octopus Hug, the Itchy Dog Hug, etc., I knew I was onto something," he said.

In the zone in Woburn

"With minimal debate, the City Council voted to rezone to Open Space (OS) 54 acres of the city of Boston's property in West Woburn at the Burlington line," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"The vote to change the zoning classification from R-1 (single-family homes) was 8-1, with Alderman at-large Paul Denaro opposed."

"Denaro was not necessarily opposed to the change itself, but said he wanted a written legal opinion he had requested from the City Solicitor's office that the city would not be exposing itself to a potential lawsuit."

"If this is seen as a land taking, I don't know if we have exposure and liability," said Denaro.

"The 54 acres that was rezoned is divided into four tracts of land deeded to the city of Boston by Mary Cummings, who also donated to the town of Burlington another approximately 160 acres."

"Alderman-at-large Joanna Gonsalves said that

Burlington re-zoned the Cummings land to that town's equivalent of Open Space 'without a challenge.'

"The town of Burlington's Planning Department confirmed, however, that the Boston property is zoned R-1, the equivalent of R-1 in Woburn."

"City Council President Charles Doherty, who sponsored the zoning change with Ward 3 Alderman Scott Galvin, said the council 'should move expeditiously' toward re-zoning in the wake of an approval not required (ANR) filing with the city's Planning Department that will freeze the R-1 zoning classification for three years, meaning the city of Boston - as rumored - could sell the land to a developer and use the proceeds to finance the Rose Kennedy Greenway above the new underground section of the new central artery in downtown Boston."

"Whether that satisfies the will of Mary Cummings, which states the land in Woburn and Burlington will remain 'forever open as a pleasure ground' could potentially be subject to a debate, however."

READY FOR ANYTHING, INCH BY INCH

Into the action (North Reading)

"Instead of the usual party games, some third graders at the L.D. Batchelder School were challenged with an engineering problem," notes the "North Reading Transcript."

"Using two sheets of copy paper, two rubber bands, and two crayons, build something that will support your math reference book above your desk... and the higher, the better."

"Within minutes, the students had formed teams and were developing and testing various hypotheses. 'Try folding both sheets!' 'Let's tear the ends of our tube to make a base.' 'Hey, we've got our book two inches off the desk!' Like all great inventors, they tried to break the rules: 'You mean we can't hold a sheet of paper and put our book in it?'

"They found that two crumpled sheets of paper would hold the book about an inch off the desk. Folding the sheets in various ways got the book four or five inches off the desk. Tubes, formed by rolled sheets of paper and rubber bands, lifted their books up to eleven inches off their desks."

"While most of the students tried to double that distance with their second sheet of paper, Lucy March, Leah McGoldrick, and Serena Petruzello wisely decided to inch their way up. They figured out how to keep the second tube from slipping down

"A School Committee is responsible for establishing the School Department's policies, the operational budget, and the selection of the Superintendent of Schools to oversee the operation of the district."

"The School Committee develops policies in two ways: 1) directly by developing written guidelines and 2) indirectly by approving plans and agreements (approving curriculums, budgets, employment contracts, etc.)"

"School Administrators provide leadership in the form of recommendations and support to the School Committee in establishing long range plans and policies."

"Once established, the Administration is responsible for ensuring that the policies and plans are implemented. This is accomplished by preparing medium range and short range plans as well as organizing, directing and controlling the affairs of the organization in conformance with all applicable laws."

"The Strategic Planning Committee (SPC), consisting of thirty members, was established to review the District's Long Range Plan."

"The membership of the SPC consists of school administrators, principals, teachers, students, parents, community members and school committee members. This provides the planning committee with a wide and diverse perspective on educational issues."

"After two general meetings, the SPC agreed that there were three main areas they wish to focus for change."

"Members could volunteer to serve on a subgroup. The subgroup areas were Student Achievement, Technology and School Facilities as well as a revised Mission Statement..."

standards in business, occupational and vocational schools. MAPCS encourages ethical practices in schools, between schools and with employers and the public. Toward this end the organization is represented on the Commonwealth's Department of Education's Proprietary Schools Advisory Council.

The Council works actively to help improve proprietary school programs while serving and protecting the students of those programs. Council members are chosen, according to DOE information, because of their demonstrated interest in and commitment to education reform, as well as interest, experience, and expertise in proprietary schools education. Through diverse membership on the council, the Department seeks to draw on the perspectives and experiences of a wide range of constituents in order to strengthen proprietary school education.

The Council advises the Commissioner of Education on matters pertinent to the development of proprietary school education in the Commonwealth. To accomplish that goal, the Council will:

- o assess statewide trends and needs;
- o seek public and professional input;
- o analyze information regarding proprietary schools;
- o advise and make recommendations regarding regulations, and guidelines; and,

o provide other programmatic recommendations, as it deems necessary, to fulfill the goals established by the Board of Education.

The Council Goals are:

o To make recommendations to the Department on policies and procedures to enhance the Department's function in its role of consumer protection.

o To make recommendations to the Department on policies and procedures to enhance the quality of proprietary school education within the Commonwealth.

o To make recommendations to the Department on policies and procedures to enhance the quality of proprietary school curriculum and teacher qualifications.

o To make recommendations to the Department on policies and procedures to improve student completion and placement rates.

o To make recommendations to the Department on strategies to improve communications between the Department and students, schools, and other interested parties.

By going to the MAPCS website, prospective students and their parents can get information on the curriculum and agendas of member schools they might be interested in. Contact information for the schools can also be found.

SPORTS SHORTS

•MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA What major league baseball player has been with the most teams? Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•JUNIOR SHORTSHOP STEVE GATH (READING, MASS./READING HS) had four hits in a doubleheader as Bentley swept Merrimack College, 3-2 and 7-0, in Northeast-10 Conference baseball Sunday afternoon at Warrior Field. Bentley, which has posted a 7-2-1 record in its last 10 games, climbed over .500 overall (12-11-1) and evened its conference record at 6-6. Merrimack dipped to 8-13 overall and 4-6 in the NE-10.

•TEWKSBURY'S DINA FERREIRO, a member of the Bentley College softball team, had a single to knock in a run in a recent 4-2 win over Post University.

•Last year, one bowler was on two different teams that set two Massachusetts state 10 pin bowling records at Pro Lanes in NORTH READING. JOE HASSARD bowled a 279 when his team set the single game record for a five person team by rolling a 1311 game, and then he bowled another 279 when his team set the single game record for a four-person team with an 1103.

•Need some help on this week's trivia question? The player appeared with 12 different teams over the course of his career.

•TEWKSBURY'S SAMMY MACY, a junior at Tewksbury Memorial High School, recently returned from Richmond, VA where she was instrumental in helping the Cape Ann Coalition Under 19 field hockey team take home the Gold Medal from the National Indoor tourney. She scored five goals in seven games, and recorded several assists.

•FORMER READING MEMORIAL HIGH SCHOOL HOCKEY GREAT CHRIS DYMENT is back on the ice for the Providence Bruins, returning after a nearly career-ending eye injury suffered on New Year's Eve outside a bar in Providence. He missed 36 games, and now wears a protective visor.

•Four local players have been selected to take part in the 28th annual Aleppo Shriners All Star Football Classic as part of a group representing the top 100 high school football players in Eastern Massachusetts. The four locals are: WOBURN'S TOM HARTAND MATHIEU OLIVIER, READING'S LINDSEY GAMBLE, and WAKEFIELD'S SHANE BROWN. The game will be played at Bentley College in Waltham on Friday, June 23 at 7 p.m., with all proceeds from ticket sales benefitting a transportation program that brings children to Shriners Hospitals from distant locations.

•WILMINGTON HIGH SCHOOL'S FOOTBALL AND BASKETBALL CHEER-LEADERS took top honors in the recent Eastern Seaboard Nationals in Williamsburg, Va., besting more than 100 teams from states throughout the Northeast. The team's dance routine was also voted the best at the competition. •ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: Mike Morgan, who retired as a member of the Arizona Diamondbacks, played on 12 different major league baseball clubs.

•DO YOU KNOW SOMETHING WE DON'T? If you have information about a local athlete that you would like to see appear in this column, please email it to readingchronicle@comcast.net, or mail it to: Paul Feely, Middlesex East Sports, P.O. ## AN EVENING WITH KLAUS KUBIERSCHKY

The Wakefield YMCA Men's Club will be presenting a program given by Klaus Kubierschky, from North Reading who has been interested in the world around him for several decades. Klaus will present a slide/talk show about the changing perception of the universe.

This exciting event will be held at the First Baptist Church, Good Speed Hall on Wednesday, April 19 at 7 p.m. This program is open to the general public, free of charge. The church is located on Main St in Wakefield, next to the YMCA.

In the early days of civilization the perception of the universe was guided by rather simple and superficial observations that were accepted uncritically. The sun was seen to rise in the east above a flat earth and set in the west. The "fixed" stars always held the same position with respect to each other and therefore had to be attached to a transparent inverted crystal bowl. The moon and the planets executed strange and convoluted motions and were therefore given a special set of rules.

Mr. Kubierschky is an engineer. He was born in Munich, Germany in 1933 and grew up in Italy during World War II. He served on the Board of Public Works, Board of Selectmen and 22 years at Town Moderator for North Reading.

First Parish offers Christ's Passion

"A Play of Life and Death," promised in a moment of mortal threat - so began the history of the Oberammergau Passion Play in 1633.

In the middle of the Thirty Years War, after months of suffering and death because of the bubonic plague, the Oberammergauers swore an oath to be fulfilled not by just a few, but by the whole community. They vowed that they would perform the "Play of the Suffering, Death and Resurrection of Our Lord Jesus Christ" every 10 years if the Lord would remove the plague from their people.

In 1634, that vow was fulfilled for the first time on a stage Oberammergau villagers put up in the cemetery above the graves of earlier plague victims. Their prayers were answered. The town of Oberammergau was spared and a tradition was born.

In 2000, the people of Oberammergau performed the play they have preserved through the centuries. More than 2,000 Oberammergau actors, singers, instrumentalists and stage technicians, in approximately six hours of playing time, brought to the stage those events that Christianity regard as its central source of life and hope.

Performers consider it an honor to participate, and they leave their businesses to do so. The men even start growing full beards a year out to look authentic.

The play is performed in the Passion Play Theatre on an open stage, which incorporates the natural setting into the backdrop of seating for 4,780 spectators. The Oberammergau production is done in native German, but an English translation is available.

Motorized window treatments - Smart, practical and convenient!

Once considered a luxury, today's homeowners are becoming more technology savvy and better educated about the benefits of motorization. Burlington based Decorator Lynne Greene, of Lynne Greene Interiors predicts a significant increase in motorization applications for a variety of reasons. "People today are very concerned about energy efficiency, child safety, security as well as convenience and motorization of window shades can address all of these issues.

Although I have to admit - most of my clients concerns recently has been the glare on the new plasma/LCD televisions that they are installing in their homes. They want the convenience of operating the shades from the same remote control that operates the electronics".

Benefits of motorized window treatments:

Convenience and functionality - Today's new homes and home additions have large, hard to reach windows.

"Motorization is a perfect solution to those windows in foyers and two-story family rooms." Another practical use for motorization is in areas that have a large number of windows. "One of my clients added an addition of a large, round breakfast room with nine windows. She really didn't want to be lifting and lowering nine different shades everyday. The perfect solution was to motorize the shades. Pressing just one button lifted and lowered them evenly all at once! We even added a remote timer. They automatically lower during the afternoon when the sun is the strongest keeping down the energy costs."

Ease of Operation - Raising, lowering and tilting of window shades all at the touch of a button. Motorization provides nearly maintenance free operation and helps increase the life of window shades by eliminating the pulling and tugging usually associated with manual cord controls.

Energy Efficiency and Security - Whether home or away, window shades can operate automatically via use of timers or sun-activated controls. Window shades can be programmed to raise or lower, conveniently providing protection from the sun, privacy, entry of natural light, and security by making a home appear occupied. A remote controlled timer can regulate the amount of sunlight coming through any window, controlling glare and brightness, and keeping the sun from damaging carpeting, hardwood floors and furniture. You can maintain a more comfortable, consistent temperature throughout the entire house while significantly reduce your heating and air conditioning costs.

Safety - Motorization offers safety by eliminating the need for dangling cords that can be hazardous to small children and pets.

"Although most existing shades can be easily retrofitted, it's best to plan ahead", Greene says. "Hardwiring during pre-construction is the best application and adds value to your home. A well thought out plan with a motorization specialist will give the home owner the best options".

For more information about shade motorization, contact Lynne Greene Interiors, 162 Cambridge Street, Burlington, MA (781) 221-8422.

Movies

cultural artifacts -- all of them verboten in the society of the day.

Under V's careful tutelage, Evey learns of corruption in high places, from church to state. V. it turns out, was once part of a medical experiment where something went very wrong. He has since pursued his personal tormentors and has also chosen a path of anarchy in his attempts to free all of England.

V For Vendetta is dramatic and tense and bloody and exciting, so it takes a while to notice that it's hugely plot-heavy and doesn't make a lot of sense. By the time Evey is in prison, getting her head shorn and reading letters of freedom written in the past by a movie star shunned for being a lesbian, V For Vendetta has begun to unravel.

This is a slick outing that offers quite a bang for your movie buck, provided you don't intend to take any of it too seriously.

Closets

and tackle tasks one at a time.

- Use the ratio rule. When sorting clothes, shoes or other items that are stored inside the closet, try cutting down on the total number of items that you keep. For every four items you keep, throw away one. Challenge yourself and try to lower the ratio to three-to-one or even two-to-one.

- Use vertical space. Use a closet organization system that is easy to install and requires limited pre-planning. These systems include the new Rubbermaid Configurations closet reorganization system, which can make it easier to organize all that chaos, while adding a new look to the closet and making the most of that unused vertical space.

- Understand and honor your treasured collections. Items thrown to the back of the closet aren't typically collections, so if you truly treasure those items, display them properly inside your home. If not, ask yourself why you're keeping those items.

- Take your child's perspective into account. Hang shelves and hooks where children can access them while in their rooms and closets. Purchase plastic containers and label them visually with a photograph of the contents so children can easily clean up their own possessions.

"Closet systems are an important tool for organizing a messy closet," Walsh says, adding, "Rubbermaid's Configurations system is great because it eliminates cutting, requires only one measurement and offers countless arrangement options.

People can literally reconfigure their child's closet as they grow, or redesign their own closet space seasonally in order to maximize storage space."

Notes

From S-4

how to proceed with new school construction projects, the city leader announced," notes the Woburn edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"Attending the School Committee meeting to participate in discussions about the issuance of the $160,000 school feasibility study, McLaughlin declared that the new city committee will explore all potential routes for new construction, including those outside of the document's scope.

"Whatever direction the City of Woburn decides to go, there's no doubt in my mind that it will require tremendous political and community support," McLaughlin said of new construction activities.

"It was my idea to set up a Transitional Committee and to have a discussion about where we go from here," the Mayor added, saying the group will be formally named in the near future. "The process I described would not preclude [any] possibility. Everything will be on the table."

"Reached at his office, the Mayor was reluctant to outline the exact composition of the committee or set a specific timetable for the group to reach a conclusion on new construction.

"According to McLaughlin, since attending recent meetings for the I-93/95 Interchange Task Force - which is charged with studying potential solutions alleviating the traffic-clogged cloverleaf - he envisioned a process that could include exploring any avenue for new construction or renovation projects.

"As such, he's presently refusing to set any specific timetable or deadline for an ultimate recommendation from the Transitional Committee, as the required time-period will be fully determined by what options the group chooses to debate.

"That's a hard question to answer, how long, because it really depends on how initial discussions go. I don't want to have any preconceived notions about how it will function," McLaughlin explained...."

Passion

From S-6

Long time Wakefield resident and First Parish Congregational Church of Wakefield member, Horace Hylan, first heard about Germany's passion play from his sister who had traveled to Germany in 1980 to see the play performed in the small mountain village of Oberammergau.

Hylan's sister's description of her passion play experience there and her account of the dedication of the Oberammergau villagers so took hold of Horace that he could not ignore his desire and dream to present to his Wakefield church family a dramatization of the Biblical account of Jesus' last days on earth, and so he went to work. Hylan worked tirelessly on the play that would be called Christ's Passion, but never tired.

In the early days of the local production, Horace Hylan thought of Christ's Passion as a gift to his church family at First Parish.

For years, the play had been offered in the church sanctuary just once on Maundy Thursday, the holy day which commemorates the institution of the Eucharist which was first celebrated at the Last Supper.

In 1999 because so much preparation, time, love and effort goes into this telling of the lessons Jesus taught and because most Christians attend a Maundy Thursday worship service at their home church, it was suggested that

First Parish offer an additional performance on Good Friday so that others from Wakefield and its surrounding communities might experience this epic drama.

Since then, two performances of Christ's Passion are offered free to the public. Christ's Passion is now recognized and accepted by the community as a gift of love from First Parish.

The First Parish passion play has evolved beautifully over the years.

New scenes have been added. Some have been eliminated. Costumes are tailored each year for the more than 50 cast members. Amazing, moving music has been incorporated.

New lighting and sound systems have been installed. Suggestions by new people who have gotten involved in the production have been adopted. Current director Pamela Abkarian has added fresh enhancements to give the story a more contemporary voice. Abkarian says, "It (Christ's Passion) has the potential to be very powerful, not only to those who know the story and believe it, but to those who have never heard it."

When Creator-Director Horace Hylan was asked in 2002 about passing on the passion play baton to Pamela Abkarian, Hylan said, "It is not the director, the actors or the wording of the script that is most important. Telling and telling again the story of Jesus' teachings, love, sacrifice, forgiveness, suffering, death and resurrection is what matters more than anything else because it is a story for today's people, a story for each of us."

A member of the Christ's Passion team wrote recently, "This past Saturday when Director Abkarian and cast members were rehearsing scenes for this year's Christ's Passion, I had the privilege to be there. As I watched, I was amazed anew and surprised that after all these years I was still so moved. Jesus and the disciples were close friends who enjoyed being together. In the Last Supper scene, Jesus and his disciples are released and enjoying each other's company. They eat, drink, laugh and tell stories to and about each other. My friends and I do that sometimes.

Sitting there in the audience watching, I identified closely with that group of friends. I felt like one of them. When the disciples begin to realize that Judas betrayed their friend, Jesus, and that everything is about to change, they are confused, angry and afraid. There is chaos as soldiers lead Jesus away. The disciples scatter in all directions. I've felt confused and afraid, and at times I've wanted to run away. Haven't you?"

The special blessing of this production is that you will clearly recognize yourself and your friends in many of the scenes, and your emotions will be heightened. You will understand anew, or for the first time, that this story is your story. It's about today's challenges and about the struggles we all face."

Director Abkarian, who had accomplished and continues to accomplish so much in her fourth year of directing Christ's Passion, brings an abundance of theatrical experience to the production. She challenges cast members at each rehearsal to identify personally with the people and events of the passion play. The actors' success in accomplishing what Abkarian asks of them is demonstrated by their genuine and sincere performances.

First Parish's 2006 production of Christ's Passion includes scenes straight from the Bible. Jesus goes to Jerusalem. A miracle at Bethany. At the Last Supper, the washing of feet and His command to "remember me." Judas' betrayal. Forgiveness given. The arrest. The trial. A guilty verdict. Torment and suffering. The crucifixion. His death. Our hope.

When he was interviewed back in 1999 by a local reporter Hylan said, "Washing someone's feet is a menial job, something that a servant might be expected to do. Jesus shows that He's here to serve rather than to be served. To love and serve one another - that is what Jesus commands each of us to do."

Even Hylan has been moved during Christ's Passion scenes. He said at that same interview, "Every time the whip hits Jesus, each time I hear the banging of the nails and the crash of the thunder, I can feel it in my stomach. It gets so emotional that we almost have to hand out boxes of tissues."

Approximately 500 people attended Christ's Passion performances in 2005.

First Parish's Christ's Passion team hope that even more people than that will find their way this year to the First Parish Congregational Church of Wakefield, the stone church at the shore of Lake Quannapowitt, Church Street at 8:00 p.m. on Maundy Thursday, April 13, or on Good Friday, April 14.

For more information about the Christ's Passion production, call the church office at 781-245-1539 or visit the church website at www.fpcwakefield.com
